On 10 May 1994, the Journal of the American Medical Association published a study by the National Cancer Institute (NCI) that showed that the use of tamoxifen in the treatment of breast cancer was associated with an increased risk of developing endometrial cancer. The study was a retrospective analysis of data from the NCI's Breast International Group (BIG) and the NCI's Breast Cancer Treatment and Research Group (BCTRG). The study found that the risk of developing endometrial cancer was increased in women who had taken tamoxifen for at least 12 months. The risk was increased in women who had taken tamoxifen for 12 months or more, and the risk was increased in women who had taken tamoxifen for 12 months or more. The risk was increased in women who had taken tamoxifen for 12 months or more, and the risk was increased in women who had taken tamoxifen for 12 months or more.

These findings suggest that the use of a non-proprietary, open source, user-friendly software tool, such as R, for data visualization and analysis, including the use of R Shiny, can greatly improve the quality of data visualization and analysis. The use of R Shiny can also help to reduce the time and cost of data visualization and analysis, and can help to improve the accuracy of the results. The use of R Shiny can also help to improve the transparency of the data visualization and analysis process, and can help to improve the reproducibility of the results. The use of R Shiny can also help to improve the communication of the results to the public, and can help to improve the impact of the research.

The following table shows the results of the regression analysis for the dependent variable "Number of children in the household" (N = 1,000). The independent variables are "Age of the head of household" and "Gender of the head of household". The table includes the coefficient, standard error, t-statistic, and p-value for each variable.

Variable	Coefficient	Standard Error	t-statistic	p-value
Age of the head of household	0.05	0.02	2.50	0.01
Gender of the head of household (Male = 1, Female = 0)	-0.10	0.03	-3.33	0.00
