Pond Aquaculture Water Quality Management Claude E. Boyd, C.S. Tucker, 2012-12-06

The efficient and profitable production of fish, crustaceans and other aquatic organisms in aquaculture depends on a suitable environment in which they can reproduce and grow. Because those organisms live in water, the major environmental concern within the culture system is water quality. Water supplies for aquaculture systems may naturally be of low quality or polluted by human activity, but in most instances the primary reason for water quality impairment is the culture activity itself. Manures, fertilizers and feeds applied to ponds to enhance production only can be partially converted to animal biomass. Thus at moderate and high production levels the inputs of nutrients and organic matter to culture units may exceed the assimilative capacity of the ecosystems. The result is deteriorating water quality which stresses the culture species and stress leads to poor growth, greater incidence of disease, increased mortality and low production. Effluents from aquaculture systems can cause pollution of receiving waters and pollution entering ponds in source water or chemicals added to ponds for management purposes can contaminate aquacultural products. Thus water quality in aquaculture extends into the arenas of environmental protection and food quality and safety. A considerable body of literature on water quality management in aquaculture has been accumulated over the past 50 years. The first attempt to compile this information was a small book entitled Water Quality in Warmwater Fish Ponds Boyd I 1979a.

Atmospheric Chemistry and Physics John H. Seinfeld, Spyros N. Pandis, 2016-04-04 Expanded and updated with new findings and new features. Household Savings in Selected Southern European Countries Evidence from Cross-Country Micro-Level Data Mr. Kamil Dybczak,Shiqing Hua,Mariusz Jarmuzek,Ruifeng Zhang,Yipei Zhang,2023-07-21 The paper looks into the puzzle of low household savings in three Southern European SE3 countries Cyprus Greece and Portugal Building on the household saving drivers literature we employ cross country micro level data and investigate the key saving patterns examining their heterogeneity across households in SE3 countries relative to the EA average The results confirm the prominent role of income along with interest rate inflation fiscal balance and debt in shaping household savings in SE3 countries Quantile regressions employed to analyze saving behavior across the distribution of households suggest that households with lower savings tend to see their savings dip or dissavings rise more than proportionately with shocks to income interest rate inflation and government balance Our policy simulations across the distribution of households suggest that targeted rather than universal policy intervention could improve household savings especially of the most vulnerable ones Calculations for A-level Chemistry E.
