Morocco Shahidur R. Khandker,Victor Lavy,Deon Filmer,1994 This paper uses data from the Morocco Living Standard Survey in an econometric investigation of the relative effectiveness of supply and demand side factors in determining educational outcomes A wide range of factors are examined that may be responsible for differences in grade completion levels and achievement among sexes regions and urban and rural areas These include household composition and income parent and teacher education levels and the presence or absence of schools paved roads electricity irrigation and convenient water sources The authors conclude that 1 educational resources are inefficiently allocated in rural Morocco with over 85 percent of resources devoted to teacher salaries as opposed to student resources 2 there is a need for more public investment in rural infrastructure in order to improve overall educational attainment and 3 given data showing higher social returns to female education it may be justifiable for the government to introduce a stipend to encourage parents to send girls to school The government of Morocco may accelerate educational achievements by furthering investments especially in rural
