Measuring Up Arie L. Nettles, Michael T. Nettles, 2012-12-06 Measuring Up revisits vital issues of equity and assessment through the research efforts and insights of many of the nation's most prominent educators and assessment experts. As its most urgent purpose, the publication aims to sensitize readers to the unfairness and inappropriate uses of testing instruments which under optimal circumstances have the potential to benefit all students. With America fervently espousing both national and state testing, the differential performance by race and social class raises the specter of tests as barriers to life milestones such as promotion, graduation, and college admissions. In response to such punitive testing, the papers included here explore a host of models and practices that are currently being piloted both in America and abroad as educators grapple with the effects the assessment is having on minority and disadvantaged students and school systems. In the process, outcomes of innovative portfolio and authentic assessments are weighed against important standards and principles of validity and consequences. As the various authors probe the gap between African American and White test scores, they raise important questions of resources, family background, and educational opportunity. Beyond their value of their recommendations to educators, their papers help to identify causes of pupil deficiencies in ways that can be addressed by policymakers. To reinforce the emphasis on equity, several authors present a definitive defense of affirmative action as a critical counter measure to the lack of fairness in school quality, family and social supports, and educational resources.

Teaching in the Standards-based Classroom, 2001. Virtually every national standards document, every state framework, and every local set of standards calls for fundamental changes in what and how teachers teach. The challenge for teachers is to implement the vision for mathematics and science classrooms called for in the standards. This issue describes that vision and suggests ways to use the standards mandated in your school to improve your practice to help you teach in your standards-based classroom.

Resources in Education, 2001-04 ENC Focus, 1994 Computational Science -- ICCS 2005 V.S. Sunderam, 2005-05-12. The three-volume set LNCS 3514-3516 constitutes the refereed proceedings of the 5th International Conference on Computational Science (ICCS 2005) held in Atlanta, GA, USA, in May 2005. The 464 papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from a total of 834 submissions for the main conference and its 21 topical workshops. The papers span the whole range of computational science, ranging from numerical methods, algorithms, and computational kernels to programming environments, grids, networking, and tools. These fundamental contributions, dealing with computer science methodologies and techniques, are complemented by papers discussing computational applications and needs in virtually all scientific disciplines, applying advanced computational methods and tools to achieve new discoveries with greater accuracy and speed.

Mathematics and Its Connections to the Arts and Sciences (MACAS) Claus Michelsen, Astrid Beckmann, Viktor Freiman, Uffe Thomas Jankvist, Annie Savard, 2022-12-19 This book celebrates the 15th anniversary of the bi annual symposium series Mathematics and its Connections to the Arts and Sciences MACAS which was first held in 2005 following the continued collaboration of an international group of researchers from ICME Topic Study Group 21 The MACAS conferences bring together scientists and educators who are interested in the connection between mathematics arts and science in educational curriculum while emphasizing on as well as researching about the role of mathematics By pooling together these different approaches and viewpoints between mathematics arts and sciences this book reveals possible synergies and paths for collaborations In view of the challenges of the 21st century a modern approach to education with a focus on multi and interdisciplinarity is more important than ever The role of mathematics assumes a key role in this approach as it is connected to all other disciplines such as STEM education physics chemistry biology aesthetics and language and can serve as a bridge between them This book discusses amongst others the curricular approaches to integrate mathematics and other disciplines the importance of mathematical modelling and the interdisciplinarity ways for learning and studying of mathematics as well as the intercultural dimensions of mathematics and mathematics in the digital era All topics will be presented from very different perspectives and regarding very different contexts including digitization culture and sustainability This unique collection will serve as a very valuable and compact source for all above mentioned scientists and educators as well as for use in advanced teacher education courses The Condition of Education, 1997 Includes a section called Program and plans which describes the Center's activities for the current fiscal year and the projected activities for the succeeding fiscal year Science Education in Canada Christine D. 13 Canadian jurisdictions the book provides local insights that serve as the basis for exploring the Canadian system as a whole and function as a common starting point from which to identify causal relationships that may be associated with Canada's successes. The book highlights commonalities, consistencies and distinctions across the provinces and territories in a thematic analysis of the 13 jurisdiction specific chapters. Although the analysis indicates a network of policy and practice issues warranting further consideration, the diverse nature of Canadian science education makes simple identification of causal relationships elusive. Canada has a reputation for strong science achievement. However, there is currently limited literature on science education in Canada at the general level or in specific areas such as Canadian science curriculum or science teacher education. This book fills that gap by presenting a thorough description of science education at the provincial/territorial level as well as a more holistic description of pressing issues for Canadian science education.

Science & Engineering Indicators, 1991      Teaching Science in the Elementary School Donna M. Wolfinger, 1984      Leading Continuous Improvement in Schools Erin Anderson, Kathleen M. W. Cunningham, David H. Eddy-Spicer, 2023-10-31

This volume provides a set of principles and systematic methods for improvement to help district and school leaders achieve the continuous improvement goals embedded in the Professional Standard for Educational Leadership (PSEL) and the National Educational Leadership Program (NELP) standards. Bringing the PSEL Standard 10 to life, this book tackles the why, how and what of continuous improvement through an equity lens. In the first section, Leading Continuous Improvement in Schools provides an overall introduction to and rationale for continuous improvement, situating current approaches to continuous improvement within broader historical and sectoral contexts. The second section highlights how the tenets of improvement science, such as making iterative, incremental, evidence-based advancements utilizing practical measurements and acknowledging variability, position school and system leaders to adaptively integrate systematic and evidence-based approaches to change as part of ongoing organizational processes. The book concludes with a section that invites readers to consider leadership approaches that forward improvement work: how leaders can build internal capacity to engage in improvement and how policy can support efforts to build and sustain the capacity for continuous improvement. Special features include beginning of chapter highlights, end of chapter connections to standards and action inventories through each chapter. Overall, the volume provides a focus on the continuous improvement aspects of the NELP and PSEL standards that serves as a bridge supporting students preparing to become educational leaders in their journey from learning about continuous improvement to learning how to lead continuous, equity-oriented improvement work in their own contexts.
