

Gravitational Physics (PHYS 3002): Gravitational acceleration

Note that Newton almost thought of the gravitational force as exerted not just by the planet you're standing on, usually the Earth, but gravity is a force exerted by all objects, which means that you too will also exert on the Earth, in this rather "out there" way that the gravitational force is calculated in this PH202, not with some direct action/reaction force magnitude within gravitational force.

Newton's law of universal gravitation

All masses in the universe are attracted to each other by a gravitational force, called F_g , which depends directly on the thing that two mass induce gravitationally, and inversely to the distance between the masses, separated by a distance of:

The gravitational force between the two masses is always attractive, just like this:

The magnitude of the gravitational force F_g between two masses is directly proportional to the product of the masses m_1 and m_2 and inversely proportional to the square of the distance of between the masses. This relationship is summarized by the equation:

$$F_g = G \frac{m_1 m_2}{r^2}$$

G is a constant of physics known as the Gravitational Constant, equal to $6.67 \times 10^{-11} \text{ N} \cdot \text{m}^2/\text{kg}^2$. This equation is known as Newton's law of universal gravitation. It was discovered by this being known after years of studying astronomical systems.

1. The diagram below shows a 50 kg mass and a 75 kg mass separated by a distance of 10 m.

(a) Sketch the vector diagram showing the direction of the forces acting on each mass.

(b) Calculate the magnitude of the gravitational force on the 50 kg mass.

(c) Calculate the magnitude of the gravitational force on the 75 kg mass.
