Text Dependent Questions: 3rd grade

Rationale:

I chose to research Text Dependent Question activities because not only is it one of the key elements of teaching to the Common Core State Standards but it supports a deeper comprehension of the text. Once students have mastered the ability to pull examples from the text to answer questions comprised by the teacher they will begin to analysis the text on a deeper level leading to higher levels of thinking.

In past years, we as teachers have thought we were teaching deep comprehension but it seems now that we were only scratching the surface of what students are capable of when working with text. Text Dependent Question activities will allow students to practice the important skill of pulling information directly from the text which is something they need to master in order to meet the rigor of the assessment soon to be aligned with the Core Standards. I intend to keep my research narrow and concentrate on only one aspect of Text Dependent Questions which is addressed by CCSS: RL.3.1. Ask and answer questions to demonstrate understanding of a text, referring explicitly to the text as the basis for the answers.

The biggest difference from past to present is that we are no longer asking students to rely on their prior knowledge and experiences to draw inferences about the text. Now, we are requiring them to be able to support their inferences with concrete evidence found in the text and they will have to support their findings by quoting the text. This will take conditioning to achieve and activities such as Teacher Think-Aloud and modeling, whole group discussions, Think-Pair-Share and Independent Writing Responses will scaffold students in their mastery of Text Dependent Questioning skills.

I selected the following texts as materials for a Text Dependent Questioning analysis for a variety reasons: a) even though I realize they are older than the recommended 10 years, they are approved by the CCSS as appropriate texts to be use for this specific task, b) they all are about sports on the surface, c) the main characters all have conflicts related to their relationship with their father in some way, d) there is diversity within the timeframe of the stories and the
