

Chapter 14

Abuse and Violence in the Family

What is Family Violence?

- Family violence occurs in many forms; DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, CHILD ABUSE, AND ELDER ABUSE
- Family violence can affect anyone at any point in their life and constitutes the majority of violent acts in our society
- Violence that occurs among family members presents a paradox in that harm is purposely inflicted by those whoa re supposed to care for or depend on one another

Family violence in Canada

- Until 30 years ago, violence committed against family members was largely seen as a private matter and remained hidden
- Since then, there have been substantial changes in the criminal justice system response and social intervention to family violence. This has been accompanied by a shift in the public's understanding and awareness of the issue
- Violent acts committed against family members are now recognized as serious violent crimes
- Before WWI, husbands were allowed by law to beat their wives with a stick no thicker than a man's thumb and to lock them in a room if they wished
- According to police-reported data in 2010, there were almost 96k victims of violence and 1k of all victims of violent crime
- 50% were spousal violence or other types of family members such as children, parents, siblings or extended family members
- Females had more than double the risk of males of becoming victim of family violence
- Domestic violence is widely understood to be a pattern of behaviour used by one person to gain power and control over another person with whom he/she has or has had an intimate relationship
- This pattern of behaviour may include physical violence, sexual, emotional, and psychological intimidation, verbal abuse, stalking, and using electronic devices to harass and control
- Dating violence was more prevalent than spousal violence, with a rate that was higher than all other relationship categories, including friends and acquaintances
- Police-reported rates of intimate partner violence tended to be highest among female victims and among those aged 25-34 years

Abuse Between Partners

- While it is generally agreed that relatively equal proportions of women and men report spousal abuse, it is also generally agreed that women are more severely abused
- Men are more likely to be kicked, bitten, hit, slapped or have something thrown at them
- Women are more likely to be sexually assaulted, choked, beaten, pushed, grabbed, shoved or threatened with a knife or gun
- Women are more than twice as likely as male victim to be physically injured by their partners; 6x more likely to receive medication attention; 5x more likely to be hospitalized due to injuries; and 3x more likely to have to take time off paid or unpaid work to deal with the consequences of the violence
- Domestic abuse against women is almost more frequent
- Women are twice as likely to report chronic and ongoing assaults than are men
