Transformation of the University Søren S.E. Bengtsen, Ryan Evely Gildersleeve, 2022-04-25 Transformation of the University imagines preferable futures for the university building hope for the institution's necessary transformation. It transcends old criticisms and presents fresh ideas on how the institution might be conceived, organised, and put into practice while safeguarding that which makes it a university: the pursuit of knowledge. This book is divided into three main parts. Part One: Knowledge assumes the role of the university in generating knowledge for the benefit of society. Part Two: Cultural Growth expands on how the university might contribute to and benefit from the cultural growth of society with both explicit and implicit connections to social and epistemic justice. Part Three: Institutions focuses on imaginative processes for enacting the university as an institution that meets the unforeseen future challenges facing societies around the world. With contributions from scholars across the world, Transformation of the University is an essential read for all academics, practitioners, institutional leaders, and broad social thinkers who are concerned with the future of the university and its contributions to society.

In addition, some partially automated systems like course registration, where current students have to login and electronically enroll in courses of interest, are also in use. Some major admission processes, however, are still not fully automated. An online enrollment system was introduced at the Tshwane University of Technology (TUT) in 2006 with a view to enable students to apply and register online and acquire valuable information from databases that belong to the Registrar's Office at TUT. Since 2006, the online system of registration at TUT has been improved in phases. The online system of registration is designed in order to enable students to register for subjects prior to the commencement of their semesters. The aim of this study is to assess how effectively students utilize the online system of enrollment at TUT. The
