

Respiratory System is responsible for the exchange of gases between the body and the environment.

The respiratory system consists of the trachea, bronchi, and lungs.

The trachea is a large, cartilaginous tube that carries air from the larynx to the bronchi. The bronchi are smaller tubes that branch out from the trachea into the lungs. The lungs are the organs where the exchange of gases takes place.

The respiratory system is divided into two main parts:

1. Upper Respiratory Tract: This part includes the nose, mouth, and pharynx. It is responsible for filtering, warming, and moistening the air before it reaches the lungs.
2. Lower Respiratory Tract: This part includes the trachea, bronchi, and lungs. It is responsible for the exchange of gases between the body and the environment.

The respiratory system is also responsible for:

1. Removing carbon dioxide from the body.
2. Producing and releasing hormones that regulate the body's metabolism.
3. Acting as a defense system against infections and diseases.
