Fig. 1 Summary of the study design. The study was a randomized controlled trial comparing the effects of a 12-week intervention on the health of 100 participants. The intervention group received a 12-week intervention, while the control group received a 12-week control intervention. The primary outcome was the change in the number of participants who were able to walk without a cane at the end of the 12-week period.

What is the probability of observing a difference in the proportion of correct answers between the two groups of students?
