Frontex and Human Rights Melanie Fink, 2018-12-20 This book analyses the allocation of responsibility for human rights violations that occur in the context of border control or return operations coordinated by Frontex The analysis is conducted in three parts The first part examines the detailed roles and powers of Frontex and the states involved during joint operations focussing on the decision making processes and chains of command The second and third parts develop general rules that govern the allocation of responsibility under public international law ECHR law and EU non contractual liability law in order to apply them to Frontex operations To illustrate the practical implications of the findings the study uses four hypothetical scenarios that are based on situations that have in the past given rise to human rights concerns The book concludes that whilst responsibility for most human rights violations lies with the host state of an operation it often shares this responsibility with participating states who contribute large assets as well as Frontex However the book also exposes how difficult it is for individuals to find a place for bringing complaints against violations of their human rights suffered at the EU's external borders This casts doubts on whether the current legal framework offers them an effective remedy

Handbook of Counseling Military Couples Bret A. Moore, 2012-04-27 The military imposes unique and often severe challenges to couples which clinicians particularly the growing numbers of civilian clinicians who see military couples often struggle to address These problems are only compounded by misunderstandings and misconceptions about what it means to be part of a specific branch of the military and part of the military as a whole Handbook of Counseling Military Couples includes a clear thorough introduction to military culture and to couple relationships in the military But more than that it provides readers with expert analyses of the special types of issues that come up for military couples and shows clinicians how to address them productively In the chapters readers will find the answers to questions such as how are military couples rights different from those of civilians What attitudes and beliefs about relationships might military members bring to a session and how are those different from those of civilians What is the state of marriage and divorce in each of the branches and within the military in general For a particular treatment modality how does research in with military members compare to that of civilians When should particular treatment strategies be used and why and how

Election Management Bodies in East Africa B. Makulilo,Eugene Ntaganda,2016-02-27 The management of elections is increasingly generating impassioned debate in these East African nations Burundi Kenya Rwanda Tanzania and Uganda The bodies that manage and conduct elections are therefore coming under intense citizen and stakeholder scrutiny for the manner in which they are composed how they organise and perform their mandates and the outcomes they achieve The effectiveness of electoral management bodies EMBs has largely been influenced by the impact of political violence on election management reforms in East Africa Even in countries where EMBs are the products of reforms initiated in the aftermath of violent disputes over elections they still face enormous challenges in dealing with electoral disputes and anticipating election related crises Although changes to constitutions and the laws in these countries have sought to make EMBs independent and therefore more inclined to deliver free fair and credible elections there are many issues that determine their impartiality and their ability to allow for the aggregation and free expression of the will of the people These shortcomings negatively impact on democracy This volume assembles case studies on the capacity of EMBs in these five East African countries to deliver democratic and transparent elections
