The Status of World History Instruction in American Secondary Schools William E. Pulliam,1972 The one year course in world history popular in some quarters does not seem to have made much headway High school level courses on world history are one of the many responses to the World Wars yet said courses have never been recommended by a committee of national scope on which there were any historians Opinion surveys among teachers and students indicate that no other part of the typical social studies program is more criticized than the tenth grade level one year elective world history course. These courses are increasing in number, textbooks are multiplying, and a few interesting experiments are being worked out, yet there is no general agreement on organization, scope, objectives, teaching strategies, or assessment in these courses. This document is a summary of historical and recent surveys on curricular trends in social studies with regard to world history to help educators assess what impact they may have on the teaching of world history in the 1970s.

A Study of the Secondary School History Curriculum in Chile from Colonial Times to the Present Carmen Gloria Zúñiga, Tom O'Donoghue, Simon Clarke, 2015-02-03

The focus of this book is on the secondary school history curriculum in Chile from colonial times to the present. By way of background, attention is paid to the development of the history curriculum in the three countries which have most influenced educational developments in Chile, namely England, the United States of America, and Spain. The academic literature on the history curriculum throughout the English speaking and Latin speaking world, especially on the purposes attached to history as a school subject and the variety of pedagogical approaches prescribed, is also considered. The results of a project that addressed the following interrelated research questions are then outlined: What is the historical background to the current secondary school history curriculum in Chile? What are the current developments of the secondary school history curriculum in Chile? What are the issues of concern for secondary school history teachers in Chile? At various times, the teaching of the subject ranged from being in the great tradition approach, emphasizing teacher-centred activities and repetition of content knowledge, to being in the new history tradition, emphasizing the promotion of active learning, student-centred activities, and the encouragement of the historical method of enquiry. The analysis also details current issues of concern for teachers regarding the implementation of the current curriculum framework for secondary school history. The book concludes with a consideration of implications for practice in areas pertaining to curriculum development, teaching and learning management, and administration, teacher preparation, and professional development practices in Chile.

The Palgrave Handbook of History and Social Studies Education Christopher W. Berg, Theodore M. Christou, 2020-04-03

This Handbook presents an international collection of essays examining history education past and present. Framing recent curriculum reforms in Canada and in the United States in light of a century-long debate between the relationship between theory and practice, this collection contextualizes the debate by exploring the evolution of history and social studies education within their state or national contexts. With contributions ranging from Canada, Finland, New Zealand, Sweden, the Netherlands, the Republic of South Africa, the United Kingdom, and the United States, chapters illuminate the ways in which curriculum theorists and academic researchers are working with curriculum developers and educators to translate and refine notions of historical thinking or inquiry as well as pedagogical practice.
