Energy Access, Poverty, and Development Benjamin K. Sovacool, Ira Martina Drupady, 2016-04-29 This book showcases how small scale renewable energy technologies such as solar panels cookstoves biogas digesters microhydro units and wind turbines are helping Asia respond to a daunting set of energy governance challenges Using extensive original research this book offers a compendium of the most interesting renewable energy case studies over the last ten years from one of the most diverse regions in the world Through an in depth exploration of case studies in Bangladesh China India Laos Indonesia Malaysia Mongolia Nepal Papua New Guinea and Sri Lanka the authors highlight the applicability of different approaches and technologies and illuminates how household and commercial innovations occur or fail to occur within particular energy governance regimes It also uniquely explores successful case studies alongside failures or worst practice examples that are often just as revealing as those that met their targets Based on these successes and failures the book presents twelve salient lessons for policymakers and practitioners wishing to expand energy access and raise standards of living in some of the world's poorest communities It also develops an innovative framework consisting of 42 distinct factors that explain why some energy development interventions accomplish all of their goals while others languish to achieve any Global Rice and Agricultural Trade Liberalisation Mohammad A. Razzaque, Edwin Laurent, 2008 The liberalisation of trade in rice is likely to have huge welfare implications for countries dependent on its production and trade This book explores the poverty and welfare implications of this liberalisation for India Bangladesh Pakistan and Sri Lanka and identifies the effects on different groups within rice dependent developing countries Microfinance and Poverty Alleviation Ben Quinones, Joe Remenyi, 2014-02-04 Despite the considerable economic growth of the Asia Pacific poverty continues to be a major problem One key way to create sustainable livelihoods and to provide poor households an escape route from poverty is microfinance Since the early 1980s microfinance practitioners have proven that the poor are creditworthy capable of utilizing scarce capital efficiently in viable income generating projects and able to pay back their loans This book collects the experience of microfinance practitioners in 11 countries in the Asia Pacific region to describe the present state of the art It is designed to provide an overview of the subject why it is so essential to poverty reduction what is the best practice what kind of policy framework and regulatory environment is required It offers both an extensive survey of the academic literature and a selection of case studies all from authors who have been active practitioners in microfinance for many years The case studies cover four key countries in South Asia and three countries in East Asia in which microfinance had become particularly important There is also a regional chapter covering the Pacific islands Water Law for the Twenty-First Century Philippe Cullet, Alix Goulland-Gualtieri, Roopa Madhav, Usha Ramanathan, 2009-10-27 This volume critically analyses legal issues arising under international law concerning the consequences of proposed water regulatory changes and their implementation The book looks at reforms in India in order to ask broader questions about the relevance of international law in national law and policy making World Culture Re-Contextualised Jürgen Schriewer, 2017-10-02 Impressive strands of research have shown the emergent reality of increasing world level interconnection in almost every field of social action As a consequence theories and models have been developed which are aimed at conceptualising this new reality along the lines of an institutionalised World Culture This offers a new understanding of the worldwide diffusion of specifically modern i.e. mainly Western rules ideologies and organisational patterns and of attendant harmonisation and standardisation of fields of social action World Culture theories have not gone unchallenged Rather cross cultural studies have revealed much more complex processes of regional fragmentation and re diversification of the refracted appropriation and hybridisation through distinct socio cultural conditioning of world level models and ideas and of the ongoing effectiveness both of structural path dependencies and of specifically cultural aspects such as collective memories social meanings and religious or ideological belief systems Comparative research has thus highlighted an intricate simultaneity of contrary currents of the increasing world level interconnection of communication and exchange relations on the one hand and on the other the persistence of context specific interpretations translations and deviation generating re contextualisations of world level forces and challenges This research provides the theoretical problematique that animates this volume The chapters explore the conceptual tools and explanatory power of theories and models which do not just oppose or reject World Culture theory but are instead suited to complementing and differentiating it The volume offers an enlightening conceptualisation of the intricate interaction of global processes with local agency and of world level forces with the self evolutionary potentials inherent in specific contexts socio cultural structures and distinctive meanings constellations This book was originally published as a special issue of Comparative Education

Climate Change and Natural Disasters Vinod Thomas, 2017-01-31

The start of the new millennium will be remembered for deadly climate related disasters the great floods in Thailand in 2011 Super Storm Sandy in the United States in 2012 and Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines in 2013 to name a few In 2014 17.5 million people were displaced by climate related disasters ten times more than the 1.7 million displaced by geophysical hazards What is causing the increase in natural disasters and what effect does it have on the economy Climate Change and Natural Disasters sends three messages human made factors exert a growing influence on climate related disasters because of the link to anthropogenic factors there is a pressing need for climate mitigation and prevention including climate adaptation ought not to be viewed as a cost to economic growth but as an investment Ultimately attention to climate related disasters arguably the most tangible manifestation of global warming may help mobilize broader climate action It can also be instrumental in transitioning to a path of low carbon green growth improving disaster resilience improving natural resource use and caring for the urban environment Vinod Thomas proposes that economic growth will become sustainable only if governments political actors and local communities combine natural disaster prevention and controlling climate change into national growth strategies When considering all types of capital particularly human capital climate action can drive economic growth rather than hinder it

The Global Emergence of Constitutional Environmental Rights Joshua C. Gellers, 2017-05-18

Over the past 40 years countries throughout the world have similarly adopted human rights related to environmental governance and protection in national constitutions Interestingly these countries vary widely in terms of geography politics history resources and wealth This raises the question why do some countries have constitutional environmental rights while others do not Bringing together theory from law political science and sociology a global statistical analysis and a comparative study of constitutional design in South Asia Gellers presents a comprehensive response to this important question Moving beyond normative debates and anecdotal developments in case law as well as efforts to describe and categorize such rights around the world this book provides a systematic analysis of the expansion of environmental rights using social science methods and theory The resulting theoretical framework and empirical evidence offer new insights into how domestic and international factors interact during the constitution drafting process to produce new law that is both locally relevant and globally resonant. Scholars, practitioners and students of law, political science and sociology interested in understanding how institutions cope with complex problems like environmental degradation and human rights violations will find this book to be essential reading.

Sri Lanka Human Capital Development Harsha Aturupane, World Bank, 2021-08-31. Human capital is a central determinant of economic well being and social advancement in the modern world economy. The concept of human capital covers the knowledge, skills, nutrition and health that people accumulate over their lives, enabling them to realize their potential as productive members of society. Because of the vital importance of human capital for economic growth, the World Bank has launched the Human Capital Project (HCP) which includes the Human Capital Index (HCI). The objective of the HCP is to accelerate human capital development around the world. The HCI is a cross country metric designed to measure and forecast a country's human capital. Sri Lanka is a lower middle income country seeking to become an upper middle income country. Developing human capital to a new and higher level will be central to achieving this development goal. After the country's 26 year secessionist conflict ended in 2009, Sri Lanka's economy enjoyed rapid growth at an average rate of almost 6 percent between 2010 and 2017, reflecting a peace dividend and a determined policy thrust toward reconstruction and growth. However, in more recent years, there have been signs of a slowdown. The economy is transitioning from a predominantly rural economy to a more urbanized one. In the context of the HCP and the HCI, Sri Lanka Human Capital Development analyzes the main achievements and challenges of human capital development in this East Asia and Pacific island country, in health and nutrition including stunting, and in education including the challenges posed by Sri Lankans' low participation in higher education. The report concludes with a look at the importance of building a consensus among the public and other stakeholders to launch an ambitious human capital development program in Sri Lanka.
