Abstract: The 1995–1996 season was characterized by a high number of reported cases of dengue fever in the city of Bogotá, Colombia. The purpose of this study was to determine the impact of the dengue epidemic on the health care system. A descriptive study was conducted in the city of Bogotá, Colombia, during the 1995–1996 season. Data were obtained from the National Health Survey, the National Health Accounts, and the National Health Insurance Agency. The results show that the dengue epidemic had a significant impact on the health care system, with a high number of cases and a high percentage of cases requiring hospitalization. The impact was more pronounced in the private health care system than in the public system. The study also found that the dengue epidemic had a significant impact on the health care system, with a high number of cases and a high percentage of cases requiring hospitalization. The impact was more pronounced in the private health care system than in the public system.

Empire has been an idea that has not only shaped the world, but also the way we think about it. It has been a source of inspiration and a source of controversy. It has been a force for progress and a force for oppression. It has been a dream and a nightmare. It has been a reality and a myth. It has been a power and a weakness. It has been a light and a shadow. It has been a hope and a despair. It has been a love and a hate. It has been a life and a death. It has been a beginning and an end. It has been a journey and a destination. It has been a path and a road. It has been a way and a means. It has been a purpose and a goal. It has been a vision and a dream. It has been a reality and a myth. It has been a power and a weakness. It has been a light and a shadow. It has been a hope and a despair. It has been a love and a hate. Britain, France and the Decolonization of Africa Andrew W.M. Smith,Chris Jeppesen,2017-03-01 Looking at decolonization in the conditional tense this volume teases out the complex and uncertain ends of British and French empire in Africa during the period of late colonial shift after 1945 Rather than view decolonization as an inevitable process the contributors together explore the crucial historical moments in which change was negotiated compromises were made and debates were staged Three core themes guide the analysis development contingency and entanglement The chapters consider the ways in which decolonization was governed and moderated by concerns about development and profit A complementary focus on contingency allows deeper consideration of how colonial powers planned for colonial futures and how divergent voices greeted the end of empire Thinking about entanglements likewise stresses both the connections that existed between the British and French empires in Africa and those that endured beyond the formal transfer of power

The Oxford World History of Empire Peter Fibiger Bang, Christopher Alan Bayly, Walter Scheidel, 2021 This is the first world history of empire reaching from the third millennium BCE to the present By combining synthetic surveys thematic comparative essays and numerous chapters on specific empires its two volumes provide unparalleled coverage of imperialism throughout history and across continents from Asia to Europe and from Africa to the Americas Only a few decades ago empire was believed to be a thing of the past now it is clear that it has been and remains one of the most enduring forms of political organization and power We cannot understand the dynamics and resilience of empire without moving decisively beyond the study of individual cases or particular periods such as the relatively short age of European colonialism The history of empire as these volumes amply demonstrate needs to be drawn on the much broader canvas of global history Volume I The Imperial Experience is dedicated to synthesis and comparison Following a comprehensive theoretical survey and bold world history synthesis fifteen chapters analyze and explore the multifaceted experience of empire across cultures and through the ages The broad range of perspectives includes scale world systems and geopolitics military organization political economy and elite formation monumental display law mapping and registering religion literature the politics of difference resistance energy transfers ecology memories and the decline of empires This broad set of topics is united by the central theme of power examined under four headings systems of power cultures of power disparities of power and memory and decline Taken together these chapters offer a comprehensive and unique view of the imperial experience in world history
