Introduction

Learning is an essential part of each person's life. Delivering knowledge to young people is often complicated, especially when it comes to disaffected and disengaged 14-19-year-old young people who have got disappointed in education. Special programmes have to be developed for such young people, the programmes that would take into account the needs of each student and make learning interesting for him/her. This is how the necessity in experiential learning has emerged. Basically, experiential education involves a "holistic process, which combines experience, perception, cognition and behavior, and aims to encompass emotions, imagination and physical being, as well as intellect" (Martin, Franc & Zounkova 2004, p. 12). Experiential and outdoor learning embrace a number of practices facilitating the students' comprehension of information (Petrina 2007). The focus of this paper is the impact of the experiential learning on the education of the disaffected and disengaged 14-19-year-old young people, as well as delivering of vocational qualifications and awards through visit and outdoor education proposed to these young people.

Teaching Context

The teaching context may include anything from the surrounding environment. For instance, in outdoor learning, sensory stimulators can be used; these stimulators may include "light and dark, noise and silence, shelter and exposure, calm and energized, food and hunger, loneliness and gregariousness, solitude and crowded, hot and cold air, wet and dry" (Beard & Wilson 2005, p. 162). Interaction with the environment is the basis of teaching disaffected and disengaged 14-19-year-olds. Real-life experiences will also facilitate the delivering of vocational qualifications and make the students more prepared for their future job roles.

Rationale for Research

This research is going to deal with the effect of the experiential education on the academic achievements of 14-19-year-old young people. Firstly, the literature used for the research will be discussed in order to explain the focus of the research. This will be followed by the description of the research methodology with the discussion of the primary data collected for the research. Finally, the findings of the research will be presented and analysed.

Literature Review

Exploring the chosen aspect of the problem is extremely vital. The matter is that the 14-19 year old stage is a critical one. Cooper (2000) states that, at this age, most of the young people need different environment for learning, the environment which can motivate them. Experiential learning is exactly what such students need because it is able to evoke their interest in vocational qualifications:

If more qualifications are seen as portable across the boundaries between types of job and types of learning programme, they may be seen by people as more desirable. Motivation to learn for qualification may be higher if the key stakeholders (learners, employers and learning providers) are involved in the management of general education. (Coles, Wenquin & Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development 2007, p. 147)
