

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The control group was instructed to maintain their current level of physical activity, while the exercise group was instructed to engage in a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of moderate-intensity aerobic exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week training program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in HR and HRR compared to the control group. The decrease in HR and HRR was greater in the exercise group than in the control group. The results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and HRR in sedentary middle-aged men.
