A Concrete Introduction to Higher Algebra Lindsay N. Childs, 2012-12-04 This book is written as an introduction to higher algebra for students with a background of a year of calculus The first edition of this book emerged from a set of notes written in the 1970s for a sophomore junior level course at the University at Albany entitled Classical Algebra The objective of the course and the book is to give students enough experience in the algebraic theory of the integers and polynomials to appreciate the basic concepts of abstract algebra The main theoretical thread is to develop algebraic properties of the ring of integers unique factorization into primes congruences and congruence classes Fermat's theorem the Chinese remainder theorem and then again for the ring of polynomials Doing so leads to the study of simple field extensions and in particular to an exposition of finite fields Elementary properties of rings fields groups and homomorphisms of these objects are introduced and used as needed in the development Concurrently with the theoretical development the book presents a broad variety of applications to cryptography error correcting codes Latin squares tournaments techniques of integration and especially to elementary and computational number theory A student who asks Why am I learning this will find answers usually within a chapter or two For a first course in algebra the book offers a couple of advantages By building the algebra out of numbers and polynomials the book takes maximal advantage of the student's prior experience in algebra and arithmetic. New concepts arise in a familiar context.

Calculus I Jerrold Marsden, Alan Weinstein, 2012-12-06. The goal of this text is to help students learn to use calculus intelligently for solving a wide variety of mathematical and physical problems. This book is an outgrowth of our teaching of calculus at Berkeley and the present edition incorporates many improvements based on our use of the first edition. We list below some of the key features of the book: Examples and Exercises. The exercise sets have been carefully constructed to be of maximum use to the students. With few exceptions we adhere to the following policies: The section exercises are graded into three consecutive groups: a) The first exercises are routine, modelled almost exactly on the examples; these are intended to give students confidence. b) Next come exercises that are still based directly on the examples and text but which may have variations of wording or which combine different ideas; these are intended to train students to think for themselves. c) The last exercises in each set are difficult. These are marked with a star and some will challenge even the best students. Difficult does not necessarily mean theoretical; often a starred problem is an interesting application that requires insight into what calculus is really about. The exercises come in groups of two and often four similar ones.
