their individual performances in a larger context and Assessing Reference and User Services in a Digital Age makes significant contributions to this ongoing discussion. The book addresses its subject matter via approaches ranging from case studies of individual libraries to general discussions of best practices. The contributors explore the impact of the Internet on the field of evaluation focusing on electronic reference and instruction. They highlight current issues, present research results, and offer expert advice on how to assess online reference and instruction. All chapters are well referenced to facilitate further study and many include tables, appendixes, checklists, and other helpful features that make difficult information easy to access and understand. The chapters that make up Assessing Reference and User Services in a Digital Age are as rich and varied as the backgrounds of their authors. Experienced researchers provide the results of studies conducted to determine the nature and effectiveness of the online reference services offered by various libraries. Practitioners and administrators from different institutional settings, academic libraries, public libraries, consortiums, etc., provide their perspectives on the issues facing librarians who need to assess the electronic services they provide. In this important new book, Andrew Briedenbach shows how a chat service can be implemented and suggests which data should be collected for it. Buff Hirko examines VET, the Virtual Evaluation Toolkit. Ruth Vondracek shares the experiences of a university library as it entered a statewide e-reference consortium and offers advice and issues to consider before entering such a partnership. Librarians from San Jose State University present a model for evaluating electronic reference services that can be used in public or academic libraries. Kathleen Kern discusses holistic evaluation; chat transcripts are addressed in several chapters, including Joseph Fennwald's comparisons of question categories. Lesley Moyo's analysis of the use of instruction in the virtual environment and Caleb Tucker Raymond's proposed set of quality measures for chat reference. Laurie Probst and Michael Pelikan report on the use of a Tell Us What You Think button to gather user feedback. Kristi Nelson and Catherine L. Ross examine a research study that asked library school students to submit a reference question online and report on their experiences. Melissa Gross, Charles McClure, and R. David Lankes suggest measures to determine the cost and benefits of a virtual reference service. Librarians from Utah State University describe the development of their online instructional module. Assessing Reference and User Services in a Digital Age is designed as essential reading for library administrators, public service librarians, and researchers. It provides general advice for practitioners as well as an examination of research results and methodological issues. We urge you to consider making it part of your professional or teaching collection today.

The 1984 Educational Software Preview Guide, 1984      The Politics of Structural Education Reform Keith A. Nitta, 2008-01-07

Education policymaking is traditionally seen as a domestic political process. The job of deciding where students will be educated, what they will be taught, who will teach them, and how it will be paid for clearly rests with some mix of district, state, and national policymakers. This book seeks to show how global trends have produced similar changes to very different educational systems in the United States and Japan. Despite different historical development, social norms, and institutional structures, the U.S. and

Japanese education systems have been restructured over the past dozen years not just incrementally but in ways that have transformed traditional power arrangements Based on 124 interviews this book examines two restructuring episodes in U S education and two restructuring episodes in Japanese education The four episodes reveal a similar politics of structural education reform that is driven by symbolic action and bureaucratic turf wars which has ultimately hindered educational improvement in both countries      Computer Assisted Learning M.R. Kibby,J.R. Hartley,2014-05-23 This volume contains a selection of the best papers from the Computer Assisted Learning 91 Symposium It includes research on a wide range of topics related to computers and learning with an emphasis on hard research evidence and innovative explorations      Real School Issues , Laura Trujillo-Jenks,Rebecca Ratliffe Fredrickson,2017-04-18 Real School Issues Case Studies for Educators shares a series of application based activities that highlight school issues and that are presented in each chapter with a case study a brief literature review and guiding discussion questions to be used with undergraduate and graduate students and current educators Across the globe there are many unforeseen problems throughout our schools such as issues in Curriculum and Instruction Assessment and Testing Classroom Management Student Discipline and Campus Safety Educator Ethical Issues or Parents and Outside Stakeholders This book uses researched based problem solving measures to help graduate and undergraduate students as well as current educators construct and develop potential solutions to these problems The focus of this book is to be used as a tool to assisting learners to use researched based methods to assist them in problem solving real world problems in a theoretical safe environment of the classroom where they can be lead and assisted by their colleagues peers and instructors      Oversight on the Federal Role in Education United States. Congress. House. Committee on Education and Labor,1985      Research Anthology on Bilingual and Multilingual Education Management Association, Information Resources,2021-10-29 Given the boost in global immigration and migration as well as the emphasis on creating inclusive classrooms research is turning to the challenges that teachers face with the increasing need for bilingual and multilingual education The benefits of bilingual education are widespread allowing students to develop important cognitive skills such as critical thinking and problem solving as well as opening further career opportunities later in life However very few resources are available for the successful practice and implementation of this education into the curriculum with an even greater lack of appropriate cultural representation in the classroom Thus it is essential for educators to remain knowledgeable on the emerging strategies and procedures available for making bilingual and multilingual education successful The Research Anthology on Bilingual and Multilingual Education is a comprehensive reference source on bilingual and multilingual education that offers the latest insights on education strategy and considerations on the language learners themselves This research anthology features a diverse collection of authors offering valuable global perspectives on multilingual education Covering topics such as gamification learning processes and teaching models this anthology serves as an essential resource for professors teachers pre service teachers faculty of K 12 and higher
