Essay A: What matters most to you, and why? (1000 words)

In Lithuania, one of the most Catholic countries in the world, it is considered a sin to leave the church. 1 Yet, as I grew older, I increasingly felt that as a priest, I could not reconcile being committed to an organization founded broadly on belief in God and the good guidance the church provides, 2 I still felt that to be true to myself was an act of apostasy—a challenging process! Several of my friends refused to be married for my sanity—in our society one is “insane” to leave the church—because they feared being ostracized. Finally, finding two people who confirmed the thoughtfulness of my decision, I went to the priest only to hear him reject my deed of will. I had to find his superior to get my name stamped and my name removed from the baptismal book. Although I was excommunicated from sacred grounds and could not be married in my country, making me an outcast socially, I was nonetheless at peace with myself because I was living by my own truth.
