

Cochran's Sample Size Formula

- The Cochran formula allows to calculate an ideal sample size given a desired level of precision, desired confidence level, and the estimated proportion of the attribute present in the population.
- Cochran's formula is considered especially appropriate in situations with large populations. A sample of any given size provides more information about a smaller population than a larger one, so there's a 'correction' through which the number given by Cochran's formula can be reduced if the whole population is relatively small.
- The Cochran formula is:

$$n_0 = \frac{Z^2 pq}{e^2}$$

Where: e is the desired level of precision (i.e. the margin of error), p is the (estimated) proportion of the population which has the attribute in question, q is $1 - p$.

The z value is found in a Z table.

to promote the teaching of sampling theory for which we wanted to emphasise its diversity The exercises are at times purely theoretical while others are originally from real problems enabling us to approach the sensitive matter of passing from theory to practice that so enriches survey statistics The exercises that we present were used as educational material at the cole Nationale de la Statistique et de l Analyse de l Information ENSAI where we had successively taught sampling theory We are not the authors of all the exercises In fact some of them are due to Jean Claude Deville and Laurent Wilms We thank them for allowing us to reproduce their exercises It is also possible that certain exercises had been initially conceived by an author that we have not identified Beyond the contribution of our colleagues and in all cases we do not consider ourselves to be the lone authors of these exercises they actually form part of a common heritage from ENSAI that has been enriched and improved due to questions from students and the work of all the demonstrators of the sampling course at ENSAI

Selection Methods in Plant Breeding Izak Bos, Peter Caligari, 1995-08-31 Our requirement for plant breeders to be successful has never been greater However one views the forecasted numbers for future population growth we will need in the immediate future to be feeding clothing and housing many more people than we do inadequately at present Plant breeding represents the most valuable strategy in increasing our productivity in a way that is sustainable and environmentally sensitive Plant breeding can rightly be considered as one of the oldest multidisciplinary subjects that is known to humans It was practised by people who first started to carry out a settled form of agriculture The art as it must have been at that stage was applied without any formal underlying framework but achieved dramatic results as witnessed by the forms of cultivated plants we have today We are now learning how to apply successfully the results of yet imperfect scientific knowledge This knowledge is however rapidly developing particularly in areas of tissue culture biotechnology and molecular biology Plant breeding's inherent multifaceted nature means that alongside obvious subject areas like genetics we also need to consider areas such as statistics physiology plant pathology entomology biochemistry weed science quality seed characteristics reproductive biology trial design selection and computing
