The Feminization of Quest-Romance Dana A. Heller, 1990-12-01 What happens when a woman dares to imagine herself a hero Questing she sets out for unknown regions Lighting a torch she elicits from the darkness stories never told or heard before The woman hero sails against the tides of great legends that recount the adventures of heroic men legends deemed universal timeless and essential to our understanding of the natural order that holds us and completes us in its spiral Yet these myths and rituals do not fulfill her need for an empowering self image nor do they grant her the mobility she requires to imagine enact and represent her quest for authentic self knowledge The Feminization of Quest Romance proposes that a female quest is a revolutionary step in both literary and cultural terms Indeed despite the difficulty that women writers face in challenging myths rituals psychological theories and literary conventions deemed universal by a culture that exalts masculine ideals and universalizes male experience a number of revolutionary texts have come into existence in the second half of the twentieth century by such American women writers as Jean Stafford Mary McCarthy Anne Moody Marilynne Robinson and Mona Simpson all of them working to redefine the literary portrayal of American women's quests They work in part by presenting questing female characters who refuse to accept the roles accorded them by restrictive social norms even if it means sacrificing themselves in the name of rebellion In later texts female heroes survive their lighting out experiences to explore diverse alternatives to the limiting roles that have circumscribed female development This study of The Mountain Lion Memories of a Catholic Girlhood Coming of Age in Mississippi Housekeeping and Anywhere but Here identifies transformations of the quest romance that support a viable theory of female development and offer literary patterns that challenge the male monopoly on transformative knowledge and heroic action

Storytelling and Spirituality in Judaism Yitzhak Buxbaum, 1994-09-01 The purpose of this book is to elevate stories and storytelling in people's esteem so they will understand their holiness and appreciate them at their full worth There are those who enjoy stories and storytelling but in the back of their minds think After all they're only stories But in the same way that the Western Wall of the Temple is not just a wall a mere pile of stones neither are the stories of the Torah or of the tzaddikim just stories Holy stories are the light of the world When we understand that when both tellers and listeners know they are engaged in sacred activity we will hold stories and storytelling more dear The teller will tell with the tongue of faith the listeners will hear with ears of faith and the circle of holiness will be closed from the Introduction

The Acoustical Unconscious Robert Ryder,2022-02-21 Is there an acoustical equivalent to Walter Benjamin s idea of the optical unconscious In the 1930s Benjamin was interested in how visual media expand our optical perception the invention of the camera allowed us to see images and details that we could not consciously perceive before This study argues that Benjamin was also concerned with how acoustical media allow us to hear otherwise that is to listen to sound structures previously lost to the naked ear Crucially they help sensitize us to the discursive sonority of words which Benjamin was already alluding to in his autobiographical work In five chapters that range in scope from Tieck's Blonde Eckbert which Benjamin once called his locus classicus of his theory of forgetting to Alexander Kluge's films and short texts where he develops what he calls sound perspectives this monograph discusses how the acoustical unconscious enriches our understanding of different media from the written word to radio and film As the first book length study of Benjamin's linguistic cultural historical and media theoretical reflections on sound this book will be particularly relevant to students and scholars of both German studies and sound studies
