1. What is the purpose of the study?
The purpose of the study is to investigate the effect of the new curriculum on the learning outcomes of the students in the field of biology.
2. What is the research design?
The research design is a quasi-experimental design, specifically a pre-test post-test control group design.
3. What is the sample size and selection method?
The sample size is 60 students, selected from two classes in a high school in Jakarta, using a purposive sampling method.
4. What are the variables of the study?
The independent variable is the new curriculum, and the dependent variable is the learning outcomes of the students.
5. What are the data collection instruments?
The data collection instruments are a pre-test and a post-test, both consisting of multiple-choice questions and short-answer questions, designed to measure the students' understanding of the biology concepts.
6. What are the data analysis techniques?
The data analysis techniques used are descriptive statistics (mean, standard deviation) and inferential statistics (t-test) to compare the learning outcomes between the two groups.
7. What are the expected results?
The expected results are that the students in the new curriculum group will show significantly higher learning outcomes compared to the students in the old curriculum group.
8. What are the limitations of the study?
The limitations of the study are the small sample size, the lack of randomization, and the potential for maturation effects.
9. What are the conclusions of the study?
The conclusion of the study is that the new curriculum has a positive effect on the learning outcomes of the students in the field of biology.
10. What are the recommendations for further research?
The recommendations for further research are to conduct a larger-scale study with a more rigorous design, and to investigate the long-term effects of the new curriculum.
