

NMRA Standards Are Influence in Europe

A report on the MOROP Congress

By Lisa M. Watcott

For the first time, the NMRA has had an observer in attendance during the entire MOROP Congress. MOROP, which is a name—not initials—is a sort of NMRA of Europe but with significant differences. For instance, clubs rather than individuals join and then each club sends a representative. Non-members are welcome to sit in at any and all events and even to express themselves. The Congress lasts one week and is held in a different country each year. This year it was the model railroad club of Lyon, France, that played host. Events were held in several parts of France's second city but mostly in the Palace of Commerce and the Hotel Terminus. A little over 200 from many countries attended.

The first days are spent largely doing business including the consideration of "Norms", (Standards), and general planning. The rest of the week is a glorious succession of fun trips.

I sat in on both groups but spent most of my time with the Standards Committee.

Most Europeans can speak their own language plus either German or French. A few speak English as well. The Standards Committee work is necessarily tedious because each person's comments must be translated from French to German or vice-versa. While I understand a little French, to be careful, some talks were also translated into English for my assistance. One learns languages fairly quickly here because many technical words are similar in each language.

I was surprised how closely the NMRA Standards had been studied by the technical committee members. NMRA was in some ways a model for MOROP, but the existing track and wheel situation in Europe was so well entrenched that the major problem, at present, is to bring the existing European wheel, rail, track, currency, and voltage measurements to a single norm. While there is respect for the finger flange and wheel tread used in the Americas, it is impractical to follow them in Europe at this time. One maker, Rivarossi, is planning to make wheels with another flange for certain export locomotives but Ross is moving carefully and probably will not go all the way all at once. One reason is that all over Europe there is suspicion about NMRA Standard wheels being workable on sectional track. It must be remembered that there is little mechanical distinction between toy and hobby model railroading in Europe. In the UK, perhaps half the market is for adults if you consider the train sets that are broken down for piece sales. In Europe toy trains are still the bigger part but hobby interest has increased remarkably.

Another important distinction is that in Europe, you will generally find by the make and each make must then be compatible with itself and a complete line. Thus, until MOROP came, there was little consideration of interchange between makes.

After the meetings, the convention spent a wonderful day on the meter gauge Chemin de Fer de Vignoble which ordinarily runs rail cars but dived off a narrow gauge Mallot back loop and some delightful old coaches for us. A four-wheel gondola wagon was pulled onto the rear for photographers. Four wheel wagons running on track with opposite rail joints are not easy riding, but who cares? It was a fine trip.

We spent another day riding dual rail cars from Lyon to Chamonix and back with a side trip up the rack railroad to the great glacier, Mer de Glace, "Sea of Ice".

The members were very glad to have an NMRA representative in attendance and it would be good to have someone attend the entire Congress each year if possible. In time there could be some actual cooperation worked out to everyone's benefit.

ATTENTION: NMRA Members!

It has come to the attention of the National Model Railroad Association that Varney Manufacturing Company is merchandising train sets containing a statement that they are "engineered to NMRA Standards."

This is in error. These sets have been checked and the merchandise does not comply nor has it received a Conformance-Inspection Warrant.

Fall Data Sheets Delayed

An explanation of the delay in delivery of the Fall issue of Data Sheets and revised Constitution has been received from Art True, General Chairman, Publications.

At a late date, a bid was received for printing of these items that would allow a considerable saving, although it meant a delay in printing and mailing. The decision was made to take the opportunity to give the budget a break.

It is hoped that delivery of the Data Sheets and Constitution can be made to the Census office in time for mailing prior to the Christmas rush. However, if this is not possible, the mailing will be further delayed until after the holidays in order to reduce the possibility of any of the shipment being lost or damaged.
