a relief to Elizabeth to have fairly talked her husband into accepting the possibility of such an unwelcome turn of affairs for events proved her misgivings to have been well founded She had truly gauged the feelings of Georgiana and Fitzwilliam with regard to each other and to their engagement Georgiana confessed with deep distress and confusion that she knew it was very ungrateful and naughty but she did not seem to be able to care for her cousin in that way and would have said so before but that she was afraid her brother and her aunt would be angry Fitzwilliam admitted that he had long feared his inability to make his cousin happy but showed how very great was his dread of causing her by his defection to be wounded reproached or unkindly talked about Elizabeth had a difficult task to smooth away all obstacles and to bring comfort to the minds of two very troubled and scrupulous people besides her other duty of persuading her husband that the separation was the right thing and of shielding Georgiana from all disagreeables but in a few days everything had been accomplished except what time alone could do Darcy could not altogether conceal his regret and disappointment at this termination of his hopes and Georgiana was miserable in the consciousness that he blamed her for not having known her mind at the beginning of the engagement Had she really cared for Fitzwilliam he was convinced that it must have gone on to a happy conclusion and naturally his cousin could hardly be the one to uphold a different opinion Fitzwilliam could only assert and reassert that Georgiana was undeserving of the slightest reproach and endeavour to divert his cousin's attention to himself It was arranged that he should accompany the Darcys as usual to Bath where they were to meet Lady Catherine and meanwhile Georgiana accepted an invitation from Jane and Mr Bingley which on a hint from Elizabeth was warmly extended to her to go and stay with them at the same time at their house on the other side of Derbyshire

Brinton, 2014-02-10 Old Friends and New Fancies By Sybil G Brinton Old Friends and New Fancies An Imaginary Sequel to the Novels of Jane Austen by Sybil G Brinton In this little attempt at picturing the after adventures of some of Jane Austen's characters I have made use of the references to them which she herself made and which are recorded in Mr Austen Leigh's Memoir More grateful

acknowledgments than I can ever express are due to my friend Edith Barran without whom this book could not have been written The difficulties as well as the presumption of such an undertaking are alike evident but the fascination of the subject must be our apology to those who like ourselves owe to Jane Austen of the happiest hours of their lives Old Friends and New Fancies Sybil G. Brinton, 2016-11-29 Old Friends and New Fancies is set in the same time as Austen's own novels and is similarly structured with a focus on the challenges of matchmaking among pairs of lovers kept apart by various social and economic tensions It has something of a postmodern overtone in that it mixes together characters from all six of Austen's major novels creating an enormously extended network of friends relations and acquaintances For example Elizabeth Bennet Darcy of Pride and Prejudice Elinor Dashwood Ferrars of Sense and Sensibility and Anne Elliot Wentworth of Persuasion are all friends Despite the fact that Brinton provides a full list of characters sorted by their source books keeping the cast straight is something many readers complain about since quite a few of the characters are only mentioned in passing The chief protagonists of Old Friends and New Fancies are three young women all unmarried at the outset Georgiana Darcy and Kitty Bennet Pride and Prejudice and Mary Crawford Mansfield Park The novel begins some six months after the marriage of Elizabeth Bennet and Fitzwilliam Darcy Darcy's sister Georgiana and cousin Colonel Fitzwilliam have gotten engaged but are not very happy together and they soon break it off Col Fitzwilliam goes to visit Lady Catherine de Bourgh in Bath with the Darcys where he meets and falls in love with Mary Crawford Robert and Lucy Steele Ferrars have been cultivating Lady Catherine and Lucy is hoping that Col Fitzwilliam will marry her sister Anne The Ferrars take the opportunity to slander Mary to Lady Catherine resulting in her banishment from Lady Catherine's circle Lonely and defiant Mary begins spending time with an admiring Sir Walter Elliott leading to a rumor that they are about to marry Hearing this and feeling that his comparative poverty and lack of title make him a poor match for Mary Col Fitzwilliam removes himself from the scene going to Ireland for a time They are only reconciled after Col Fitzwilliam is badly injured in a fall from his horse while hunting Meanwhile Kitty Bennet has gone to London as a protegee of Emma Woodhouse Knightley Although less flighty than formerly she falls madly in love with William Price a friend of the Knightleys and a naval officer who is the younger brother of Fanny Price Bertram of Mansfield Park Georgiana visits Kitty in London where she is introduced to William at a ball given by the Knightleys Kitty later goes to stay with Elizabeth and Georgiana at Pemberley and they try unsuccessfully to rein in her expectation of receiving a proposal of marriage from William The Darcys give a ball at which William instead of proposing to Kitty declares his love to Georgiana Georgiana out of consideration for Kitty's feelings and confusion about her own initially rebuffs William but eventually the two become engaged while a sobered Kitty pairs up with clergyman James Morland whom Darcy has installed in a local parish The latter denouement was hinted at by Austen herself in her letters where she mentions that she can imagine Kitty married to a Derbyshire clergyman Almost as an afterthought Brinton also pairs up Tom Bertram and Isabella Thorpe completing a sequence in which all of Brinton's characters destined for matrimony become engaged to

Performing Jane Sarah Glosson, 2020-06-10 Jane Austen has resonated with readers across generations like no other writer More than two hundred years after the publication of her most celebrated novel Pride and Prejudice people around the world continue to honor dear Jane In Performing Jane Sarah Glosson explores this vibrant fandom examining a long history of Austen fans engaging with her work from wearing hand-sewn bonnets and period appropriate corsets to creating spirited fanfiction and comical gifsets Sophisticated and engaging this study demonstrates that Austen fans of today have a great deal in common with those who loved the English novelist long before the term fan came into use Performing Jane analyzes three ways fans engage with Austen and her work collecting material related to the writer whether in physical scrapbooks or on social media platforms creating and consuming imitative works including fanfiction and modernized adaptations such as The Lizzie Bennet Diaries and making pilgrimages to

Steventon Hampshire Chawton Cottage and even to annual meetings of Jane Austen societies Key to Glosson's exploration of Austen fans is the notion that all of these activities whether occurring in private or in public are fundamentally performative And in counterbalance to studies that center on fans with a tendency to transform and disrupt the original text this study provides much needed understanding of a fandom that predominantly reaffirms Austen's works Because Austen's writing has bridged the realms of both literary and popular culture this fandom serves as an excellent case study to understand the ways in which we draw distinctions between fandom and other forms of intensive engagement and more importantly to appreciate how fluid those distinctions can be Performing Jane embraces a holistic view of the long history of Austen fandom relying on archival research literary and visual analyses and ethnographic study This groundbreaking book not only demonstrates the ways in which fan practices today and in the past are performative but also provides fresh perspectives into fandom and contributes to our understanding of the ways readers engage with literature
