Abstract: This study examines the effect of the 2008 financial crisis on the relationship between the size of the firm and the amount of debt financing. The results show that the relationship between the size of the firm and the amount of debt financing is positive and significant. The results also show that the relationship between the size of the firm and the amount of debt financing is stronger for firms in the manufacturing industry than for firms in the services industry. The results suggest that the 2008 financial crisis has not significantly affected the relationship between the size of the firm and the amount of debt financing.
