

Where to Lubricate

To ensure sweet running and long life of wearing parts lubricate once a fortnight if used daily, or every 150 miles, at all points shown on diagram.

Correct lubrication is just as essential for a fine bicycle as for an automobile. Riders are cautioned against the use of some of the widely advertised "multi-purpose" oils, some of which are positively injurious to bearings and gear parts.

Our own oil is specially prepared for correct body and lubricating properties and for use over the wide range of operating temperatures experienced in the U.S.A.

It should be employed on all parts of the cycle and gears according to the instructions given.

Sturmey-Archer Hubs

Before using a new hub, or one that has been stored away for some time, inject one teaspoonful of our Oil and add from quarter to half of this quantity once every fortnight afterwards. Make sure that the lubricator hole is clear and that oil sinks into the hub. See that the cover is properly closed afterwards. Oil trigger control inner wire occasionally. Do not use thick oil or grease.
