PowerPoint slides A Phenomenological Inquiry of Women's Lived Experiences in Preparing for High-Level

Leadership Positions Aldith A. Bell, 2010-08-05 The purpose of the qualitative hermeneutic phenomenological study was to explore the influence of leadership development or succession planning programs upon women's progression to high level positions and their continued success in the executive ranks. A qualitative methodology provided a detailed and rich understanding of the experiences of women in high level leadership from the perspectives of women who have experienced leadership development or succession planning programs. Twenty women in high level leadership positions employed in for profit organizations in the eastern United States were the focus of the study. The results revealed that while some aspects of the programs were effective upon promotion to their high level positions most of the women leaders expressed a lack of preparation for their high level positions. Key issues the women executives indicated were missing in existing leadership development and succession planning programs were a on the job training b lack of mentors and c job rotation Exploring Research: Pearson New International Edition Neil J Salkind, 2013-08-27 Presents the basics of research in the social and behavioral sciences in an informative and student friendly way.
