In the article "Alterations in Brain and Immune Function Produced by Mindfulness Meditation" the researchers' question included the changes of mental and physical health in response to meditation. This problem was chosen because it had not been studied deeply before. A randomized and controlled study on the effects on brain and immune function was made. Forty-eight members of the group that was studied had average age of 36. The participants' age was from 23 to 56 years. All but two members were white. This group of people participated in special regular trainings in mindfulness meditation, and then their brain electrical activity was measured. The training reduced the anxiety among the members of the group and they had greater activation of the left side of the brain. In addition, they had a large rise in antibody titers. However, the study had some limitations. Additional research should be made (Davidson et al., 2003).

a. I have confidence in the researchers' findings. Meditation influences the brain activity and the immune system. However, the findings have some limitations. The group studied was very small. The age of the examinees ranged from 23 to 56 years. Therefore, the study did not focus on the people who are older or younger. All but two members were white, and it is a limitation, too. Moreover, the meditation training was not long. Thus, it is not clear what would be the results of people who meditate regularly during a long period. In addition, the members of the group were not professional meditators, and the results of the professionals could have been different.

b. To my opinion, the study does not generalize to other people that were not the subject of the research. As it was mentioned above, the ages of the participants ranged from 23 to 56 years. There were no participants below 23 years and above 56 years. Therefore, it is the Research Perspectives on White-Collar and Corporate Crime Convenience Petter Gottschalk, 2025-01-06 This study identify current research perspectives on white collar and corporate crime convenience an important emergent area of research It applies the theory of convenience to research articles on white collar and corporate crime recently published in the most relevant journals addressing economic crime This kind of white collar corporate crime is often committed by persons of respectability and high social status who commit financial crime based on their trusted professional positions with high social status While convenience theory covers fourteen convenience propositions there is varying attention to them in the reviewed articles For example a frequent topic analysed in the journal articles is online romance fraud where victims were not on guard because they trusted their offenders Trust tends to strengthen the convenience proposition addressing lack of guardianship oversight and control The book adds substance to the theory of convenience that emerged less than a decade ago and has since been developing and applied by various scholars The review is also interesting from the perspective of understanding what aspects of crime convenience are implicitly and explicitly addressed in economic criminology research that is whether motives opportunities or attitudes are mainly addressed in financial crime research so far The second part of the book presents several short case studies on topics including fraud tax evasion and money laundering The final part of the book discusses gender convenience perspectives and the emerging issues around digital fraud

Biodiesel Fuels Based on Edible and Nonedible Feedstocks, Wastes, and Algae Ozcan Konur, 2021-05-05 This second volume of the Handbook of Biodiesel and Petrodiesel Fuels presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of feedstock specific biodiesel fuels The research on feedstocks for biodiesel fuels has first focused on the edible oils as first generation biodiesel fuels. However, the public concerns about the competition with foods based on these feedstocks and adverse impact on the ecological diversity and deforestation have resulted in the exploration of nonedible oil based biodiesel fuels as second generation biodiesel fuels. In the first instance, due to the ecological and cost benefits of treating wastes, waste oil based biodiesel fuels as third generation biodiesel fuels have emerged. Furthermore, following a series of influential review papers, the research has focused on the algal oil based biodiesel fuels in recent years. Since the cost of feedstocks in general constitutes 85% of the total biodiesel production costs, the research focused more on improving biomass and lipid productivity in these research fields. Furthermore, since water, CO<sub>2</sub> and nutrients, primarily N and P, have been major ingredients for the algal biomass and lipid production, the research has also intensified in the use of wastewaters and flue gases for algal biomass production to reduce the ecological burdens and the production costs. Part 1 presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of edible oil based biodiesel fuels, covering major research fronts. It covers soybean oil based biodiesel fuels, palm oil based biodiesel fuels, and rapeseed oil based biodiesel fuels as case studies, besides an overview paper. Part 2 presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of nonedible oil based biodiesel fuels, covering major research fronts. It covers Jatropha oil based biodiesel fuels, pongamia oil based biodiesel fuels, and moringa oil based biodiesel fuels as case studies, besides an overview paper. Part 3 presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of waste oil based biodiesel fuels, covering major research fronts. It covers wastewater sludge based biodiesel fuels, waste cooking oil based biodiesel fuels, and microbial oil based biodiesel fuels as case studies, besides an overview paper. Part 4 presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of algal oil based biodiesel fuels, covering major research fronts. It covers algal biomass production in general, algal biomass production in wastewaters, algal lipid production, hydrothermal liquefaction of algal biomass, algal lipid extraction, and algal biodiesel production, besides an overview paper. This book will be useful to academics and professionals in the fields of Energy, Fuels, Chemical Engineering, Physical Chemistry, Biotechnology, and Applied Microbiology, Environmental Sciences, and Thermodynamics. Ozcan Konur is both a materials scientist and social scientist by training. He has published around 200 journal papers, book chapters, and conference papers. He has focused on the bioenergy and biofuels in recent years. In 2018, he edited Bioenergy and Biofuels, that brought together the work of over 30 experts in their respective field. He also edited Handbook of Algal Science, Technology, and Medicine, with a strong section on the algal biofuels, in 2020. Biodiesel Fuels Ozcan Konur, 2021-05-05. This first volume of the Handbook of Biodiesel and Petrodiesel Fuels presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of biodiesel fuels in general. Part I provides an overview of the research field on both biodiesel and petrodiesel fuels, highlighting primary and secondary research fronts in these fields. Part II presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of biooils, covering major research fronts. The research on the biooils is a fundamental part of the research on the biodiesel fuels. The research in this field has intensified in recent years. with the application of advanced catalytic technologies and nanotechnologies in both production and upgrading of biooils. It covers pyrolysis, hydrothermal liquefaction, and upgrading and characterization and properties of biooils, besides an overview of the research field. Part III presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of biodiesel fuels in general, covering major research fronts. The research in this field has progressed in the lines of production, properties, and emissions of biodiesel fuels. As in the case of biooils, catalysts and additives play a crucial role for the biodiesel fuels. It covers biomass-based catalyst-assisted biodiesel production, enzymatic biodiesel production, additives in biodiesel production, properties, characterization, performance, and policies of biodiesel fuels, besides an overview of the research field. Part IV presents a representative sample of the population papers in the field of glycerol, biodiesel waste, covering major research fronts. The research in this field has intensified in recent years with the increasing volume of biodiesel fuels, creating eco-friendly solutions for these wastes of biodiesel fuels for producing valuable biofuels and biochemicals from glycerol. It covers biohydrogen and propanediol production from glycerol as a case study for bioenergy and biochemicals, respectively. This book will be useful to academics and professionals in the fields of Energy, Fuels, Chemical Engineering, Physical Chemistry, Biotechnology, and Applied Microbiology, Environmental Sciences, and Thermodynamics.
