

Structure Of Research Paper

Title

Choose a title that best describes your work & is concise & free from jargon. Be mindful of search engine optimization by using the most relevant keywords. Remember that it should entice the reader.

Abstract

This is a concise summary of the entire article. It is the first part of an article that gets read & serves to encourage the reader to look into the whole article, so it's important to get it right.

Introduction

Why did you do the research? Demonstrate an expert understanding of prior work in this field, typically with a literature review, placing the significance of your research among the existing literature.

Methods/Experimental Section

Think of this as a recipe; the aim here is to enable the reader to recreate the research with the same outcome. How you did it, what materials, tools & techniques you used.

Results & Discussion

What was the result? What does it mean? Why does it make a difference? Where does it lead? Does it open other avenues for enquiry? Be careful not to summarize the entire article here, that is what the abstract is for.

Conclusion

What is the take-home message?
