

A romantic scene between a man and a woman in a dimly lit room. The man is shirtless, muscular, and has long dark hair. He is holding the woman from behind, his hands resting on her shoulders and arms. The woman has blonde hair and is looking up at him with a soft expression. They are in a close embrace, suggesting intimacy. The background is dark and moody, with warm lighting highlighting their figures. The overall tone is sensual and romantic.

Jane Austen and Critical Theory Michael Kramp,2021-06-15 Jane Austen and Critical Theory is a collection of new essays that addresses the absence of critical theory in Austen studies an absence that has limited the reach of Austen criticism The collection brings together innovative scholars who ask new and challenging questions about the efficacy of Austen s work This volume confronts mythical understandings of Austen as Dear Aunt Jane the early twentieth century legacy of Austen as a cultural salve and the persistent habit of reading her works for advice or instruction The authors pursue a diversity of methods encourage us to build new kinds of relationships to Austen and her writings and demonstrate how these relationships might generate new ideas and possibilities ideas and possibilities that promise to expand the ways in which we deploy Austen The book specifically reminds us of the vital importance of Austen and her fiction for central concerns of the humanities including the place of the individual within civil society the potential for new identities and communities the urgency to address racial and sexual oppression and the need to imagine more just futures Chapter 4 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Doing What Comes Naturally Stanley Fish,1989-05-08 In literary theory the philosophy of law and the sociology of knowledge no issue has been more central to current debate than the status of our interpretations Do they rest on a ground of rationality or are they subjective impositions of a merely personal point of view In Doing What Comes Naturally Stanley Fish refuses the dilemma posed by this question and argues that while we can never separate our judgments from the contexts in which they are made those judgments are nevertheless authoritative and even in the only way that matters objective He thus rejects both the demand for an ahistorical foundation and the conclusion that in the absence of such a foundation we reside in an indeterminate world In a succession of provocative and wide ranging chapters Fish explores the implications of his position for our understanding of legal literary and psychoanalytic interpretation the nature of professional and institutional culture and the place of reason in a world that is rhetorical through and through
