Place Randomized Trials Robert F. Boruch,2005-05 The phrase evidence based policy is frequently used but it s crucial that such claims are scrutinized and validated When the data on social and behavioral interventions are presented high quality evidence must be clearly defined and the methodology behind such studies held to rigorous standards Both the Cochrane Collaboration focusing on healthcare and the international Campbell Collaboration concentrating on criminal justice education and social services were created to develop maintain and improve detailed guidelines for producing high quality systematic reviews And both organizations emphasize randomized controlled trials to evaluate the effectiveness of various interventions As a springboard from the Campbell Collaboration initiative and supported by the Rockefeller Foundation this special issue of The Annals includes a thorough review of randomized tests across a variety of studies Exploring significant dimensions of place randomized trials also called cluster randomized trials or group randomized trials these papers shed light on recent efforts to enhance the quality of designing such trials as well as on results reporting The research topics included in this volume are diverse Taken together these papers offer important insight into the nuts and bolts of conducting randomized trials the significance of place in trials how such studies are initiated the incentives and justifications needed by participants how to overcome challenges of implementation and where to find out what studies have already been conducted or are currently underway While providing far reaching insight into the topic of randomized testing these papers also identify new issues and key questions to be further addressed in future research Scholars and policymakers alike will find this collection of rigorous research essential in understanding the implications of current evidence based policies as well as a guidepost for designing and conducting new studies

Research Methods in Human Resource Management Eugene F. Stone-Romero, Patrick J. Rosopa, 2020-05-01. Empirical research in HRM has focused on such issues as recruiting, testing, selection, training, motivation, compensation, and employee well-being. A review of the literature on these and other topics suggests that less than optimal methods have often been used in many HRM studies. Among the methods related problems are: using measures or manipulations that have little or no construct validity; b) samples of units or participants that bear little or no correspondence to target populations; c) research designs that have little or no potential for supporting valid causal inferences; d) samples that are too small to provide for adequate statistical power; and e) data analytic strategies that are inappropriate for the issues addressed by a study. As a result, our understanding of various HRM phenomena has suffered, and improved methods may serve to enhance both the science and practice of HRM. In view of the above, the purpose of this volume of Research in Human Resource Management is to provide basic and applied researchers with resources that will enable them to improve the internal validity, external validity, construct validity, and statistical conclusion validity of research in HRM and the related fields of industrial and organizational psychology and organizational behavior. Sound research in these fields should serve to improve both science and practice. With respect to science, support for a theory hinges on the validity of research used to support it. In addition, the results of valid research are essential for the development and implementation of HRM policies and practices. In the interest of promoting valid research-based inferences in HRM research, the chapters in this volume identify a wide range of methods related problems and offer recommendations for dealing with them. Chapters in it address such HRM research related topics as neglected research issues, causal inferences in research, heteroscedasticity in research, range restriction in research, interrater agreement indices, and construct validity issues in measures of such constructs as job performance, organizational politics, and safety climate.

Empirical Methods for Evaluating Educational Interventions Gary D. Phye, Daniel H. Robinson, Joel

Levin,2005-03-07 Invaluable for all educators and teachers needing to write acceptable grant proposals or to obtain governmental funding for their programs      Validity and Social Experimentation Leonard Bickman,2000-01-21

Annotation Leading social research methodologists and evaluators address the issues of validity research design and social experimentation in this first of two volumes inspired by the work of Donald Campbell and sponsored by the American Evaluation Association The first part of the book focuses on three types of validity external construct and statistical Much attention is given to meta analysis statistical testing and effect sizes The second part is a major critique of Campbell s vision and practice of social experimentation Contributors review and extend Campbell s ideas concentrating on their relevance to evaluation and social intervention and seeking to define an experimenting society      Design and Analysis of Time Series Experiments

Richard McCleary,David McDowall,Bradley Bartos,2017-05-11 Design and Analysis of Time Series Experiments presents the elements of statistical time series analysis while also addressing recent developments in research design and causal modeling A distinguishing feature of the book is its integration of design and analysis of time series experiments Readers learn not only how to skills but also the underlying rationales for design features and analytical methods ARIMA algebra Box Jenkins Tiao models and model building strategies forecasting and Box Tiao impact models are developed in separate chapters The presentation of the models and model building assumes only exposure to an introductory statistics course with more difficult mathematical material relegated to appendices Separate chapters cover threats to statistical conclusion validity internal validity construct validity and external validity with an emphasis on how these threats arise in time series experiments Design structures for controlling the threats are presented and illustrated through examples The chapters on statistical conclusion validity and internal validity introduce Bayesian methods counterfactual causality and synthetic control group designs Building on the earlier time series books by McCleary and McDowall Design and Analysis of Time Series Experiments includes recent developments in modeling and considers design issues in greater detail than does any existing work Drawing examples from criminology economics education pharmacology public policy program evaluation public health and psychology the text is addressed to researchers and graduate students in a wide range of behavioral biomedical and social sciences It will appeal to those who want to conduct or interpret time series experiments as well as to those interested in research designs for causal inference      Assessment, Measurement, and Prediction for Personnel Decisions

Robert M. Guion,2011-02-25 Robert Guion s best seller is now available in this new second edition This noted book offers a comprehensive and practical view of assessment based personnel decisions not available elsewhere in a single source This edition more frankly evaluates the current research and practice and presents challenges that will change the basic thinking about staffing systems This new edition suggests new directions for research and practice includes emphasis on modern computers and technology useful in assessment and pays more attention to prediction of individual growth and globalization challenges in the assessment process The book will be of interest to faculty and students in Industrial
