The Civil Rights Movement

The Civil Rights Movement is known as a period of time in the 1950s and 1960s that really began about 100 years earlier, after the American Civil War. The Civil Rights Movement occurred because of the desire for racial equality after the end of slavery in America.

After the Civil War, the American South was a very racist place. There were many segregation laws, which meant people were kept separate. There were segregation laws for schools and where people could sit on a bus or in a restaurant. There were laws that said that people could not marry a person of a different race.

One of the first things that happened was that people started to go to school with people of a different race. This was called desegregation. It was a big step towards equality.

There were many other things that happened during the Civil Rights Movement, like the March on Washington and the Selma to Montgomery march. These were all important events that helped to bring about change.

American children access to white schools but more than this as school stories they also comment upon how structural racism operates in the classroom and mutates over the course of decades through the pedagogical practices depicted in literature for young readers Lesley combines approaches from critical race theory disability studies and educational philosophy in order to investigate how the educational market simultaneously constrains how racism in schools can be presented to young readers and also provides channels for radical critiques of pedagogy and visions of alternative systems The volume examines a range of titles from novels that directly engage the Brown v Board of Education decision such as Sharon Draper's Fire From the Rock and Dorothy Sterling's Mary Jane to novels that engage less obvious legacies of desegregation such as Cynthia Voigt's Dacey's Song Sharon Flake's Pinned Virginia Hamilton's The Planet of Junior Brown and Louis Sachar's Holes This book will be of interest to scholars of American studies children's literature and educational philosophy and history
