Machinist, 1911      Atlas of Prejudice Yanko Tsvetkov, 2013-08-11 The Atlas of Prejudice is a continuation of the highly successful Mapping Stereotypes project by visual artist Yanko Tsvetkov. Started in January 2009, the project soon became a viral online sensation. It was gradually expanded to contain more than 40 stereotype maps which the author describes as cartographic caricatures ridiculing the worst excesses of human bigotry and narrow mindedness. The essays that accompany them narrate the story of the project and contemplate humanity's affair with prejudice since the dawn of civilization. They offer an even deeper but equally hilarious perspective on our inherent tendency to randomly blame people simply because someone convinced us that they ate our breakfast. According to this book, the first domesticated animal was not the dog but the scapegoat. The razor sharp irony of the author will guide you through the delusions of the ancient civilizations of Greece and China, reveal the stupefying amalgam of superstition and paranoia of the Middle Ages, and it will leave you begging for more with a grotesquely hilarious prediction about the future of Europe. Satire and cartography rarely come in a single package but in the Atlas of Prejudice they successfully blend to produce a book that is shockingly funny and disturbingly thought provoking all at the same time.

The Imaginary of Animals Annabelle Dufourcq, 2021-07-30 This book explores the phenomenon of animal imagination and its profound power over the human imagination. It examines the structural and ethical role that the human imagination must play to provide an interface between human subjectivity and the real cognitive capacities of animals. The book offers a systematic study of the increasing importance of the metaphors, the virtual and figures in contemporary animal studies. It explores human/animal and real/imaginary dichotomies, revealing them to be the source of oppressive cultural structures. Through an analysis of creative, playful and theatric enactments and mimicry of animal behaviors and communication, the book establishes that human imagination is based on animal imagination. This helps redefine our traditional knowledge about animals and presents new practices and ethical concerns in regard to the animals. The book strongly contends that allowing imagination to play a role in our relation to animals will lead to the development of a more empathetic approach towards them. Drawing on works in phenomenology, contemporary animal philosophy as well as ethological evidence and biosemiotics, this book is the first to rethink the traditional philosophical concepts of imagination, images, the imaginary and reality in the light of a zoocentric perspective. It will appeal to philosophers, scholars and students in the field of animal studies as well as anyone interested in human and non-human imaginations.

An Aesthesia of Networks Anna Munster, 2013-05-17 The experience of networks as the immediate sensing of relations between humans and nonhuman technical elements in assemblages such as viral media and databases. Today almost every aspect of life for which data exists can be rendered as a network. Financial data, social networks, biological ecologies, all are visualized in links and nodes, lines connecting dots. A network visualization of a corporate infrastructure could look remarkably similar to that of a terrorist organization. In An Aesthesia of Networks, Anna Munster argues that this uniformity has flattened our experience of networks as active and relational processes and assemblages. She counters the network anaesthesia that results from this pervasive mimesis by reinserting the question of experience or aesthesia into networked culture and aesthetics Rather than asking how humans experience computers and networks Munster asks how networks experience what operations they perform and undergo to change and produce new forms of experience Drawing on William James s radical empiricism she asserts that networked experience is assembled first and foremost through relations which make up its most immediately sensed and perceived aspect Munster critically considers a range of contemporary artistic and cultural practices that engage with network technologies and techniques including databases and data mining the domination of search in online activity and the proliferation of viral media through YouTube These practices from artists who undermine data to musicians and VJs who use intranetworked audio and video software environments are concerned with the relationality at the core of today s network experience

Rees,2016-08-12 Whilst much has been written about the doors that technology can open for students less has been said about its impact on teachers and professors Although technology undoubtedly brings with it huge opportunities within higher education there is also the fear that it will have a negative effect both on faculty and on teaching standards Education Is Not an App offers a bold and provocative analysis of the economic context within which educational technology is being implemented not least the financial problems currently facing higher education institutions around the world The book emphasizes the issue of control as being a key factor in whether educational technology is used for good purposes or bad purposes arguing that technology has great potential if placed in caring hands Whilst it is a guide to the newest developments in education technology it is also a book for those faculty technology professionals and higher education policy makers who want to understand the economic and pedagogical impact of technology on professors and students It advocates a path into the future based on faculty autonomy shared governance and concentration on the university's traditional role of promoting the common good Offering the first critical in depth assessment of the political economy of education technology this book will serve as an invaluable guide to concerned faculty as well as to anyone with an interest in the future of higher education
