Resources in Education, 2001 Research in Education, 1971-12 The Early Childhood Curriculum Suzanne L. Krogh, Pamela Morehouse, 2014-02-18 Based on research that demonstrates the powerful advantages of integrating the curriculum while providing inquiry opportunities The Early Childhood Curriculum shows how to make such an approach work for all children preschool through the primary grades The text demonstrates how to confidently teach using inquiry based methods that address the whole child while also meeting and exceeding academic standards Offering a foundation in early childhood theory philosophy research and development the 2nd edition of this unique textbook helps future teachers as well as current educators understand the why of curriculum in early childhood and invests them with the skills they need to move from simply following a script to knowledgeably creating curricula on their own Since each curricular subject has its own integrity there is a chapter for each discipline grounding the reader in the essentials of the subject in order to foster knowledgeable and effective integration The 2nd edition of The Early Childhood Curriculum includes information on the most recent trends in national curriculum standards particularly in regard to the Common Core State Standards Initiative and the Next Generation Science Standards Coupled with this information are practical suggestions for meeting standards while still providing young learners with a truly child centered educational experience Chapters contain real life vignettes that demonstrate inquiry and integration in practice The entire text reflects the philosophy that the use of inquiry to seek and obtain information is one of the most valuable and powerful tools children can acquire along the way to becoming lifelong learners Color in the Classroom Zoe Burkholder, 2011-10-05 Between the turn of the twentieth century and the Brown v Board of Education decision in 1954 the way that American schools taught about race changed dramatically This transformation was engineered by the nation's most prominent anthropologists including Franz Boas Ruth Benedict and Margaret Mead during World War II Inspired by scientific racism in Nazi Germany these activist scholars decided that the best way to fight racial prejudice was to teach what they saw as the truth about race in the institution that had the power to do the most good American schools Anthropologists created lesson plans lectures courses and pamphlets designed to revise what they called the race concept in American education They believed that if teachers presented race in scientific and egalitarian terms conveying human diversity as learned habits of culture rather than innate characteristics American citizens would become less racist Although nearly forgotten today this educational reform movement represents an important component of early civil rights activism that emerged alongside the domestic and global tensions of wartime Drawing on hundreds of first hand accounts written by teachers nationwide Zo Burkholder traces the influence of this anthropological activism on the way that teachers understood spoke and taught about race She explains how and why teachers readily understood certain theoretical concepts such as the division of race into three main categories while they struggled to make sense of more complex models of cultural diversity and structural inequality As they translated theories into practice teachers crafted an educational discourse on race that differed significantly from the definition of race produced by scientists at mid century Schoolteachers and their approach to race were put into the spotlight with the Brown v Board of Education case but the belief that racially integrated schools would eradicate racism in the next generation and eliminate the need for discussion of racial inequality long predated this Discussions of race in the classroom were silenced during the early Cold War until a new generation of antiracist multicultural educators emerged in the 1970s
