From Eden to Interstellar Space Sarah Anne Beattie, 2025-01-23 This book is a response to two questions The first concerns how we can do better as human beings in addressing the broken relationships between humankind the environment in which we live and the other species with which we coexist in an increasingly fragile world The second concerns whether secular humanism can provide the answer or if there is an important contribution that Christian faith can offer to an understanding of the human condition that will empower effective transformational action The book explores the possibility of developing an interpretive approach to biblical narrative that allows a biblical perspective of reality to provide an important complementary rather than competing supplement to developing scientific perspectives of reality These are perspectives emerging from quantum mechanics and astrophysics that challenge both our conceptual ability and the limits of language in articulating mystery that in resisting physical explanation appears to demand new or different ways of thinking about ourselves and the world in which we live

Literature and the Remains of the Death Penalty Peggy Kamuf, 2018-10-16 Why have generations of philosophers failed or refused to articulate a rigorous challenge to the death penalty when literature has been rife with death penalty abolitionism for centuries In this book Peggy Kamuf explores why any properly philosophical critique of capital punishment in the West must confront the literary as that which exceeds the logical demands of philosophy Jacques Derrida has written that the modern history of the institution named literature in Europe over the last three or four centuries is contemporary with and indissociable from a contestation of the death penalty How Kamuf asks does literature contest the death penalty today particularly in the United States where it remains the last of its kind in a Western nation that professes to be a democracy What resources do fiction narrative and poetic language supply in the age of the remains of the death penalty Following a lucid account of Derrida's approach to the death penalty Kamuf pursues this question across several literary texts In reading Orwell s story A Hanging Kamuf explores the relation between literary narration and the role of the witness concluding that such a witness needs the seal of literary language in order to account for the secret of the death penalty The next chapter turns to the American scene with Robert Coover s 1977 novel The Public Burning which restages the executions of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg as an outlandish public spectacle in Times Square Because this fictional device reverses the drive toward secrecy that beginning in the mid nineteenth century put an end to public executions in the West Kamuf reads the novel in a tension with the current tendency in the U S to shore up and protect remaining death penalty practices through increasingly pervasive secrecy measures A reading of Norman Mailer s 1979 novel The Executioner s Song shows the breakdown of any firm distinction between suicide and capital execution and explores the essential affinity between traditional narrative structure which is plotted from the end and the plot of a death penalty Final readings of Kafka Derrida and Baudelaire consider the relation between literature and law showing how performative literary language can play the law A brief conclusion titled Postmortem reflects on the condition of literature as that which survives the death penalty A major contribution to the field of law and society this book makes the case for literature as a space for contesting the death penalty a case that scholars and activists working across a range of traditions will need to confront

Ancient Western Asia Beyond the Paradigm of Collapse and Regeneration (1200-900 BCE) Maria Grazia Masetti-Rouault, Ilaria Calini, Robert Hawley, Lorenzo d'Alfonso, 2024-05-07

New results and interpretations challenging the notion of a uniform macroregional collapse throughout the Late Bronze Age Eastern Mediterranean Ancient Western Asia Beyond the Paradigm of Collapse and Regeneration 1200 900 BCE presents select essays originating in a two year research collaboration between New York University and Paris Sciences et Lettres The contributions here offer new results and interpretations of the processes and outcomes of the transition from the Late Bronze Age to the Iron Age in three broad regions Anatolia northern Mesopotamia and the Levant Together these challenge the notion of a uniform macroregional collapse throughout the Eastern Mediterranean followed by the regeneration of political powers Current research on newly discovered or reinterpreted textual and material evidence from Western Asia instead suggests that this transition was characterized by a diversity of local responses emerging from diverse environmental settings and culture complexes as evident in the case studies collected here in history archaeology and art history The editors avoid particularism by adopting a regional organization with the aim of identifying and tracing similar processes and outcomes emerging locally across the three regions Ultimately this volume reimagines the Late Bronze Iron Age transition as the emergence of a set of recursive processes and outcomes nested firmly in the local cultural interactions of western Asia before the beginning of the new unifying era of Assyrian imperialism Mining the Heartland Erik Kojola, 2023-06-06

Honorable Mention Outstanding Publication Award given by the Environmental Sociology Section of the American Sociological Association A riveting portrait of the cultural struggles and political conflicts of proposed copper nickel mines in Minnesota's Iron Range On an unseasonably warm October afternoon in Saint Paul hundreds of people gathered to protest the construction of a proposed copper nickel mine in the rural northern part of their state The crowd eagerly listened to speeches on how the project would bring long term risks and potentially pollute the drinking water for current and future generations A year later another proposed mining project became the subject of a public hearing in a small town near the proposed site But this time local politicians and union leaders praised the mine proposal as an asset that would strengthen working class communities in Minnesota In many rural American communities there is profound tension around the preservation and protection of wilderness and the need to promote and profit from natural resources In Mining the Heartland Erik Kojola looks at both sides of these populist movements and presents a thoughtful account of how such political struggles play out Drawing on over a hundred ethnographic interviews with people of the region from members of labor unions to local residents to scientists Kojola is able to bring this complex struggle over mining to life Focusing on both pro and anti mining groups he expands upon what this conflict reveals about the way whiteness and masculinity operate among urban and rural residents and the different ways in which class race and gender shape how people relate to the land Mining the Heartland shows the negotiation and conflict between two central aspects of the state s culture and economy outdoor recreation in the Land of Ten Thousand Lakes and the lucrative mining of the Iron Range      The Constitutive A Priori Arthur

Sullivan,2018-04-06 The question of the a priori can an adequate epistemology be developed without appeal to a non empirical source of justification is a core issue running throughout the history of philosophy and recent decades have seen some provocative and potentially epochal work on the issue Arthur Sullivan provides a clear headed evaluation of the upshot of these developments He argues that the notion of the constitutive a priori provides the best means all things considered of accommodating these recent developments into a coherent compelling view The constitutive a priori is most commonly known as a position within the philosophy of science holding that one of Kant s signature moves provides the means to incorporate unforeseen drastic shocks into existing theory This book shows that this notion of the constitutive a priori provides not merely a satisfactory epistemological framework but further a compelling way to accommodate and integrate some of the most significant lessons learned in twentieth century philosophy Its distinctive contribution lies in the case it builds for taking this constitutive a priori orientation as a good means of integrating and consolidating certain epochal insights of Wittgenstein Carnap Quine Kripke and Kaplan      Materialist Philosophy of History Branko Mitrovic,2020-07-08

What does it mean for our understanding of history if we assume that everything is physical and that no immaterial entities forces or phenomena exist A Materialist Philosophy of History A Realist Antidote to Postmodernism examines the implications of a materialist worldview in contemporary philosophy of history Materialism has wide ranging consequences for historical research as well as for the credibility of various conceptions of the historical past Branko Mitrovic shows how these implications pertain both to the nature of social institutions and the capacities of historical figures to decide act acquire beliefs and communicate and to the methodology of historical research and problems such as the interpretation and the translation of historical documents A materialist view also entails rejecting the view that forces such as culture language or society can construct physical reality or that the historical past is constructed through the work of the historian This book examines these consequences and presents a comprehensive materialist perspective on historical research and the understanding of the historical past      Ontology after Carnap Stephan Blatti,Sandra Lapointe,2016-03-25 Analytic philosophy is once again in a methodological frame of mind Nowhere is this more evident than in metaphysics whose practitioners and historians are actively reflecting on the nature of ontological questions the status of their answers and the relevance of contributions both from other areas within philosophy e g philosophical logic semantics and beyond notably the natural sciences Such reflections are hardly new the debate between Willard van Orman Quine and Rudolf Carnap about how to understand and resolve ontological questions is widely seen as a turning point in twentieth century analytic philosophy

And indeed this volume is occasioned by the fact that the deflationary approach to metaphysics advocated by Carnap in that debate is once again attracting considerable interest and support. Containing eleven original essays by many of today's leading voices in metametaphysics, Ontology After Carnap aims both to deepen our understanding of Carnap's contributions to metaontology and to explore how this legacy might be mined for insights into the contemporary debate. This collection will be of interest to scholars and students working in metaphysics, semantics, philosophical logic, metaphilosophy, and the history of analytic philosophy.

The American War in Vietnam John Marciano, 2016-08. On May 25, 2012, President Obama announced that the United States would spend the next thirteen years commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Vietnam War and the more than 58,000 patriots who died there. The fact that 3 million Vietnamese soldiers, parents, grandparents, children, also died, will be largely unknown and entirely uncommemorated. U.S. history barely stops to record the millions of Vietnamese who lived on after being displaced, tortured, maimed, raped, or born with birth defects, the result of devastating chemicals wreaked on the land by the U.S. military. The reason for this disconnect lies in an unremitting public relations campaign waged by top American politicians, military leaders, business people, and scholars who have spent the last sixty years justifying the U.S. presence in Vietnam. The American War in Vietnam challenges all of us to stop the ongoing U.S. war on actual history. Marciano reveals the grandiose flag waving that stems from the Noble Cause Principle, the notion that America is chosen by God to bring democracy to the world. The result is critical writing and teaching at its best. This book will provide students everywhere with insights that can prepare them to change the world.

The Oxford Handbook of Philosophy and Disability Adam Cureton, David Wasserman, 2020-05-14. Disability raises profound and fundamental issues: questions about human embodiment and well-being, dignity, respect, justice, and equality, personal and social identity. It raises pressing questions for educational, health, reproductive, and technology policy and confronts the scope and direction of the human and civil rights movements. Yet it is only recently that disability has become the subject of the sustained and rigorous philosophical inquiry that it deserves. The Oxford Handbook of Philosophy and Disability is the first comprehensive volume on the subject. The volume's contents range from debates over the definition of disability to the challenges posed by disability for justice and dignity; from the relevance of disability for respect, other interpersonal attitudes, and intimate relationships to its significance for health policy, biotechnology, and human enhancement; from the ways that disability scholarship can enrich moral and political philosophy to the importance of physical and intellectual disabilities for the philosophy of mind and action. The contributions reflect the variety of areas of expertise, intellectual orientations, and personal backgrounds of their authors. Some are founding philosophers of disability; others are promising new scholars; still others are leading philosophers from other areas writing on disability for the first time. Many have disabilities themselves. This volume boldly explores neglected issues, offers fresh perspectives on familiar ones, and ultimately expands philosophy's boundaries. More than merely presenting an overview of existing work, this Handbook will chart the growth and direction of a vital and burgeoning field for
