Modelling Cathal O'Donoghue, 2021-09-23 The purpose of this book is to bring together for the first time a description and examples of the main methods used in microsimulation modelling used in the field of income distribution analysis It is structured to develop and use the different types of models used in the field with a focus on household targeted policy The book aims to provide a greater degree of codified knowledge by providing a practical guide to developing and using microsimulation models At present the training of researchers and analysts that use and develop microsimulation modelling is done on a relatively ad hoc basis through occasional training programmes and lecture series built around lecture notes Practical Microsimulation Modelling enables a more formalised and organised approach Each chapter addresses a separate modelling approach in a similar consistent way describing in a practical way the key methodological skills for each approach

Transport and Information Systems Roger Stough, 2003 The subjects of transport and information systems have long been closely linked because they are both complements and substitutes for each other and thus offer potential for more efficient and productive traffic demand management This important new collection examines the substitution and complementarity hypotheses as well as the impact of new information technology on transport and the increasing adoption of information technology in transportation systems The volume is organised into five sections Part I offers a history and overview of the subject while part II examines the welfare implications of information provision for traffic demand management Part III discusses the network analysis of intelligent transportation systems and part IV investigates the spatial impacts of information technology and telecommuting Finally part V looks in detail at case studies This fascinating new collection will be an essential source of reference to scholars practitioners and students interested in the subjects of transport and information systems

China Urbanizing Weiping Wu, Qin Gao, 2022-09-20 China turned majority urban only in the recent decade a dramatic leap given that less than 20 percent of its population lived in cities before 1980 This book situates China's urbanization in the interconnected forces of historical legacies contemporary state interventions and human and ecological conditions It captures the complexity of the phenomenon of urbanization in its historical and regional variations and explores its impact on the country's socioeconomic welfare environment and resources urban form and lifestyle and population and health It is also a book about China in which the contributors provide new perspectives to understand the transitions underway and the gravity of the progress particularly in the context of demographic shifts and climate change The chapters in China Urbanizing written by American and Chinese scholars achieve three interconnected aims The first is to explore how the process of urbanization has shaped and been influenced by the social economic and physical interactions that take place in and beyond cities and the state interventions intended to regulate such interactions The second is to examine the shifts and evolutions emerging in urban China such as the economic slowdown population aging and low fertility rates and how cities interact with the environment and planet given China's rising role in the global discourse on climate change The third is to explore new sources of information for conducting research on urban China such as satellite and street level imagery data and online listings to account for the complexity and heterogeneity that characterize contemporary Chinese urbanization Contributors Juan Chen Dean Curran Deborah Davis Peilei Fan Qin Gao Pierre F Landry Shi Li Shiqi Ma Justin Remais Alan Smart Shin Bin Tan Jeremy Wallace Sarah Williams Binbin Wu Weiping Wu Guibin Xiong Wenfei Xu
