South African Military Recruitment 2015 Project:

South Africa's Post-Apartheid Military Lindy Heineken, 2020-01-01 This timely book examines how the South African National Defence Force has adapted to the country's new security political and social environment since 1994. In South Africa's changed political state, how has civilian control of the military been implemented and what does this mean for defence in a democracy? This book presents an overview of the security environment, how the mission focus of the military has changed and the implications for force procurement, force preparation, force employment and force sustainability. The author addresses other issues such as the effect of integrating former revolutionary soldiers into a professional armed force, the effect of affirmative action on meritocracy, recruitment and retention of military veterans, looking at the difficulties they face in reintegrating back into society and finding gainful employment, gender equality and mainstreaming the rise of military unions and why a confrontational instead of a more corporatist approach to labour relations has emerged. HIV/AIDS and the consequences this holds for the military in terms of its operational effectiveness. In closing, the author highlights key events that have caused the SANDF to become lost in transition and transformation, spelling out some lessons learned. The conclusions she draws are pertinent for the future of defence, security and civil-military relations of countries around the world.

Manpower and the Armies of the British Empire in the Two World Wars Andrew L. Brown, Douglas E. Delaney, Mark Frost, 2021-06-15 In the first and only examination of how the British Empire and Commonwealth sustained its soldiers before, during and after both world wars, a cast of leading military historians explores how the empire mobilized manpower to recruit, work, care for veterans and transform factory workers and farmers into riflemen. Raising armies is more than counting people, putting them in uniform and assigning them to formations. It demands efficient measures for recruitment, registration and assignment. It requires processes for transforming common people into soldiers and then producing officers, staffs and commanders to lead them. It necessitates balancing the needs of the armed services with industry and agriculture. And often overlooked but illuminated incisively here, raising armies relies on medical services for mending wounded soldiers and programs and pensions to look after them when demobilized. Manpower and the Armies of the British Empire in the Two World Wars is a transnational look at how the empire did not always get these things right. But through trial error analysis and introspection it levied the large armies needed to prosecute both wars Contributors Paul R Bartrop Charles Booth Jean Bou Daniel Byers Kent Fedorowich Jonathan Fennell Meghan Fitzpatrick Richard S Grayson Ian McGibbon Jessica Meyer Emma Newlands Kaushik Roy Roger Sarty Gary Sheffield Ian van der Waag The Second World War in East Africa, 1940-1941, 2024-12-16 As a first of its kind this edited collection brings together a variety of chapters dealing with different topics that address where possible most of the participants involved in or affected by the conflict as well as different often neglected aspects of the East Africa campaign of the Second World War In doing so this volume not only makes a definite contribution to the broader historiography and to our understanding of a diverse complex Second World War but will also serve as an impetus for further topical research on an important yet neglected campaign of the war

International Associations,2014-06-16 Volume 1 A and B covers international organizations throughout the world comprising their aims activities and events Military Integration during War-to-Peace Transitions Lesley Anne Warner,2023-06-07 In the 1960s only 10% of peace agreements included some element of political military accommodation namely military integration From Burundi to Bosnia to Zimbabwe that number had increased to over 50% by the 2000s However relatively little is understood about this dimension of power sharing often utilized during war to peace transitions Through an examination of the case of South Sudan between 2006 and 2013 this book explores why countries undergoing transitions from war to peace decide to integrate armed groups into a statutory security framework This book details how integration contributed to short term stability in South Sudan allowing the government to overcome wartime factionalism and consolidate political military power prior to the referendum on self determination in 2011 It also examines how the integration process in South Sudan was flawed by its open ended nature and lack of coordination with efforts to right size the military and transform the broader defense sector and how this led the military to fragment during periods of heightened political competition Furthermore the book explains why integration ultimately failed in South Sudan and identifies the wider lessons that could be applied to current or future war to peace transitions This book will be of great interest to students of war and conflict studies peacebuilding post conflict reconstruction African security issues and International Relations in general as well as to practitioners

Respecting Toleration Peter Balint,2017 The question of toleration matters more than ever The politics of the twenty first century is replete with both the successes and all too often the failures of toleration Yet a growing number of thinkers and practitioners have argued against toleration Some believe that liberal democracies are better served by different principles such as respect of or recognition for people s ways of life Others argue that because the liberal state should be entirely neutral or indifferent towards people s ways of life it can no longer be tolerant it has no grounds on which it can object and so there is nothing left to tolerate Respecting Toleration provides a new original and provocative take on the question of toleration and its application to the politics of contemporary diversity Peter Balint argues for both the conceptual coherence and normative desirability of toleration and neutrality He argues that it is these principles which best realise the basic liberal good of people living their lives as they see fit rather than appealing to principles of recognition or respect for difference While those who criticised liberalism s failings in dealing with the claims of diversity had justification it is the tenets of traditional liberalism that hold the answer Respecting Toleration argues that if one cares about people living divergent lives then it is liberal toleration that should be respected by legislators and policy makers and not people s differences

The State of Palestine Philip Leech,2016-10-26 The Palestinian national movement reached a dead end and came close to disintegration at the beginning of the present century This critical analysis of internal Palestinian politics in the West Bank traces the re emergence of the Palestinian Authority s established elite in the aftermath of the failed unity government and examines the main security and economic agendas pursued by them during that period Based on extensive field research interviews and participant observation undertaken across several sites in Nablus and the surrounding area it provides a bottom up interpretation of the Palestinian Authority s agenda and challenges the popular interpretation that its governance represents the only realistic path to Palestinian independence As the first major account of the Palestinian Authority s political agenda since the collapse of the unity government this book offers a unique explanation for the failure to bring a Palestinian state into being and challenges assumptions within the existing literature by addressing the apparent incoherence between mainstream debates on Palestine and the reality of conditions there This book is a key or at certain key moments redefine the assertions of martial identity which Highland regiments represented
