Psychological Assessment in South Africa Sumaya Laher, Kate Cockcroft, 2013-01-01 This book provides an overview of the research related to psychological assessment across South Africa. The thirty six chapters provide a combination of psychometric theory and practical assessment applications in order to combine the currently disparate research that has been conducted locally in this field. Existing South African texts on psychological assessment are predominantly academic textbooks that explain psychometric theory and provide brief descriptions of a few testing instruments. Psychological Assessment in South Africa provides in depth coverage of a range of areas within the broad field of psychological assessment including research conducted with various psychological instruments. The chapters critically interrogate the current Eurocentric and Western cultural hegemonic practices that dominate the field of psychological assessment. The book therefore has the potential to function both as an academic text for graduate students as well as a specialist resource for professionals including psychologists, psychometrists, remedial teachers and human resource practitioners.

THE EARLY GRADE READING ASSESSMENT Amber K. Gove, Anna Wetterberg, 2011-09-28 The Early Grade Reading Assessment (EGRA) measures students' progress towards reading. EGRA gauges early literacy skills through a 15 minute individual oral assessment of five fundamental reading skills. RTI worked with education experts to develop the EGRA in 2006 and it has been piloted and implemented in more than 40 countries. This volume aims to take stock of the substantial amount of information and experience generated through the use of EGRA and to share this knowledge with practitioners, policymakers and international donors. Chapters cover not only particular applications of the instrument but also put EGRA in the context of broader issues and developments in literacy and education.

Learner-centered Science Education, 2019-02-11 This book arises from the author's experience of the South African science curriculum development and teaching since 1994, exploring definitions of science and approaches to science education appropriate to a newly liberated developing country. Each of the 50 chapters is borne out of Cliff Malcolm's close relationships with communities in SA where he obtained deep insights into their attitudes to science teaching and learning, providing him with an empirical basis to challenge tertiary institutions to transform their curriculum offerings to embrace the culture and world views of African students. The author makes a compelling case for the evolution of relevant science teaching and learning that provide capital for indigenous knowledges. The book has relevance also to first world countries because the social and educational problems facing South Africa though starker here are present in all countries The book addresses among others the nature of scientific knowledge and knowledge production how scientific knowledge can be accessed and represented what counts as legitimate scientific knowledge in the South African context of colonization liberation inequity and African belief systems The book extends the debates on African Science and offers ways of talking and writing about science that reframe it acknowledging problematics and pluralism offering ways of bringing Western and African thought together Using a richly descriptive novelistic style the author sketches vivid portraits of his research sites participants and experiences His vignettes are embedded in deep theoretical insights lending gravity to the development discourse in science education providing a coherent language for the transformational agendas of science educators committed to the project of social justice through a relevant science
