Quantum Structures in Cognitive and Social Science Diederik

Aerts, Jan Broekaert, Liane Gabora, Sandro Sozzo, 2016-06-26 Traditional approaches to cognitive psychology correspond with a classical view of logic and probability theory More specifically one typically assumes that cognitive processes of human thought are founded on the Boolean structures of classical logic while the probabilistic aspects of these processes are based on the Kolmogorovian structures of classical probability theory However growing experimental evidence indicates that the models founded on classical structures systematically fail when human decisions are at stake These experimental deviations from classical behavior have been called paradoxes fallacies effects or contradictions depending on the specific situation where they appear But they involve a broad spectrum of cognitive and social science domains ranging from conceptual combination to decision making under uncertainty behavioral economics and linguistics This situation has constituted a serious drawback to the development of various disciplines like cognitive science linguistics artificial intelligence economic modeling and behavioral finance A different approach to cognitive psychology initiated two decades ago has meanwhile matured into a new domain of research called quantum cognition Its main feature is the use of the mathematical formalism of quantum theory as modeling tool for these cognitive situations where traditional classically based approaches fail Quantum cognition has recently attracted the interest of important journals and editing houses academic and funding institutions popular science and media Specifically within a quantum cognition approach one assumes that human decisions do not necessarily obey the rules of Boolean logic and Kolmogorovian probability and can on the contrary be modeled by the quantum mechanical formalism Different concrete quantum theoretic models have meanwhile been developed that successfully represent the cognitive situations that are classically problematical by explaining observed deviations from classicality in terms of genuine quantum effects such as contextuality emergence interference superposition entanglement and indistinguishability In addition the validity of these quantum models is convincingly confirmed by new experimental tests We also stress that since the use of a quantum theoretic framework is mainly for modeling purposes the identification of quantum structures in cognitive processes does not presuppose without being incompatible with it the existence of microscopic quantum processes in the human brain In this Research Topic we review the major achievements that have been obtained in quantum cognition by providing an accurate picture of the state of the art of this emerging discipline Our overview does not pretend to be either complete or exhaustive But we aim to introduce psychologists and social scientists to this challenging new research area encouraging them at the same time to consider its promising results It is our opinion that if continuous progress in this domain can be realized quantum cognition can constitute an important breakthrough in cognitive psychology and potentially open the way towards a new scientific paradigm in social science Soviet Power

Causality and Locality in Modern Physics G. Hunter, Stanley Jeffers, J.P. Vigiér, 2013-06-29 The Symposium entitled Causality and Locality in Modern Physics and Astronomy Open Questions and Possible Solutions was held at York University Toronto during the last week of August 1997 It was a sequel to a similar symposium entitled The Present Status of the Quantum Theory of Light held at the same venue in August 1995 These symposia came about as a result of discussions between Professor Stanley Jeffers and colleagues on the International Organizing Committee Professor Jeffers was the executive local organizer of the symposia The 1997 symposium attracted over 120 participants representing 26 different countries and academic institutions The broad theme of both symposia was the enigma of modern physics the non local and possibly superluminal interactions implied by quantum mechanics the structure of fundamental particles including the photon the reconciliation of quantum mechanics with the theory of relativity and the nature of gravity and inertia Jean Pierre Vigiér was the guest of honour at both symposia He was a lively contributor to the discussions of the presentations The presentations were made as 30 minute lectures or during an evening poster session Some participants did not submit a written account of their presentation at the symposium and not all of the articles submitted for the Proceedings could be included because of the publisher's page limit The titles and authors of the papers that had to be excluded are listed in an appendix
