Psychological Health: A Systematic Review of the Literature on the Role of Psychological Health in the Development of Mental Health Problems

1. Psychological Health

Psychological health is a state of well-being in which the individual is able to realize his or her potential, to cope with the stresses of life, to work productively and creatively, to love, to be loved, and to be part of a supportive community.

2. Psychological Health: A Systematic Review

The purpose of this review is to provide a comprehensive overview of the literature on the role of psychological health in the development of mental health problems. The review is organized into four main sections: (a) the definition of psychological health, (b) the measurement of psychological health, (c) the role of psychological health in the development of mental health problems, and (d) the implications for practice.

3. The Role of Psychological Health in the Development of Mental Health Problems

The role of psychological health in the development of mental health problems is a complex issue. It is influenced by a number of factors, including genetic, environmental, and psychological factors. The review examines the evidence for each of these factors and discusses the implications for practice.

4. The Implications for Practice

The implications for practice of the findings of this review are discussed. The review suggests that psychological health is a key factor in the development of mental health problems and that it should be a focus of clinical practice. The review also suggests that psychological health should be a focus of public health practice.

desperate to win his father's approval. However, Mr Eze not only seemed unwilling to bestow it but hell bent in making life unbearable for his acclaimed son. Kelvin thought it would be best to find his true family rather than endure the torture of being the unwanted child. He realised that his quest for recognition was unlikely to succeed so he set his eyes on freedom. In the meantime, Kelvin expected that a good academic performance would change his luck and put him right with Mr Eze or at least boost his confidence in his abilities. With all his attention on his studies, competing for the best grades against the leading brains in his class, especially Christian, an indomitable rival, he would not let school romance get in the way of his goal. But slowly and steadily, Chioma gained his trust and won him over. He would have to make a decision between holding on to his moral principle or satisfying his human desire for friendship.

New Home, New Identity

Marginalised and decimated, the Biafran people were forced to go to war and secede from Nigeria. But decades after losing the war and embracing the Nigerian identity, they are still not treated as equal citizens in their home country. As a new wave of terrorism sweeps the northern parts of the country, the Biafran people, predominantly Igbo, are again decimated as they have been for decades in every crisis, and this led to renewed discussions about their independence. For Biafra, the fight for equality was over and their Sovereignty was not negotiable. For Kelvin, it wasn't very different, and so his quest for truth and independence must begin. His compulsory holiday in Igbo land would expose him to the truth that might have indirectly caused him to abandon his academic pursuit. Perhaps it was just an excuse to free himself from the clutch of Mr Eze and begin his quest for the truth about his identity.
