By 1938, Joseph Stalin, to a great extent, converted Russia from a backwards agricultural state to one of the most advanced industrial states in the world. Stalin abandoned the New Economic Policy (NEP) and made use of a series of Five Year Plans which placed emphasis on the ideas of collectivisation and industrialisation. Stalin had a highly centralised system of government and economic control. (His "cult personality"). His use of terror and propaganda to control the nation which further contributed towards Russia's radical transformation.
