"The history of philosophy exhibits man's search for Truth by the way of discursive reason. A Neo-Thomist, developing St. Thomas' words, Omnis cognitio humana cognoscitur inditum Deum in quolibet cognita, has maintained that the judgment always points beyond itself, always contains an implicit reference to Absolute Truth, Absolute Being. At any rate we may say that the search for truth is ultimately the search for Absolute Truth, God, and even those systems of philosophy which appear to refute this statement, e.g. Historic Materialism, are nevertheless examples of it, for they are all seeking, even if unconsciously, even if they wouldn't recognize the fact, for the ultimate Ground, the supremely Real."

- from the Introduction to
A History of Philosophy,
Frederick Copleston (I, 6)

I Purpose and Objectives:

A. The primary purpose of this or any introductory course is, obviously, to introduce you to the major ideas and writings in the particular field. In this course, you will be introduced to the millennia-spanning conversations on knowledge (or Knowledge), the soul, free will, ethics, government, and aesthetics, with a view to understanding the foundations of each particular view, and the implications of the same. What you do with the introduction is up to you.

B. A secondary purpose is to enable you to intelligently, respectfully, and confidently engage in this conversation, both in class and, eventually, with others outside it, in order to articulate a view of the world that is oriented toward Christ.

C. A tertiary purpose is to encourage you to think through the implications of your ideas and beliefs, with a view to critically refining those views and constructing a more stable, coherent, and truly Biblical worldview.

D. My final purpose is to encourage you to read with understanding and write with clarity, and to be able think, speak, and write with originality, intelligence, and confidence.

II. Course Requirements:

A. You will be expected to read 2-3 hours a week in preparation for this class. Re-reading is encouraged - it's practically required by the material, which has a tendency to be dense. In addition, reading is measured by the quality of the answers to questions about the reading.

B. Questions are to be answered, typed and double-spaced, for each excerpt read, according to the stipulations delineated below, and are due at the beginning of each class period. Writing should be at a college level; if you need help, avail yourself of the college writing center. Please.

C. Class participation is expected. The discipline of philosophy (and it is a discipline) is rooted in Philosophy, Who Needs It? Jason D. Crowder, 2016-03-02 Too often skeptics charge Christians with having a blind faith Unfortunately believers have added fuel to the charges of skeptics by speaking of their faith illogically But the Christian faith is not a blind faith In fact biblical faith is never a blind irrational faith Christianity rests firmly on the stone that was rejected by the builders which has become the cornerstone Jesus Christ Acts 4 11 Living biblically requires thinking biblically just as to think biblically entails to live biblically as Winfried Corduan notes in the Foreword As followers of Christ believers cannot separate biblical thinking and biblical living These two behaviors are eternally connected not only in the person of Jesus Christ but they stem from the eternal being of God the Father and his eternal truth Christ mandates that his followers love God with their entire being heart soul mind and strength Mark 12 30 How are believers to go about living out this biblical mandate Christian faith is a warranted belief This is why it is so essential that Christians recognize the value and importance of philosophy and its proper place in Christendom and in the Christian's walk Department of the Army Pamphlet ,1951
