shocks that called into question the state's legal and social policy contract with its citizens. This period of contesting the Philippines was an intense normative and practical struggle to shape or reshape some of the Philippines' most critical institutions: the Constitution, the presidency, the Supreme Court, and the rule of law, the free press, regional autonomy, and independent regulatory institutions. These developments energized many domestic policy actors: technocrats, the business sector, civil society organizations, the police, and the military, armed groups, and religious leaders across the spectrum of Filipino politics. This volume considers some key sites of contestation between and among domestic policy actors, including the executive, during this eventful period for political and legal institutions in the Philippines.

Drawing on the most recent data available, this comprehensive book provides detailed descriptions and analysis of the bond markets in eight East Asian developing economies: Hong Kong, Indonesia, South Korea, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Taiwan, and Thailand. Robert Emery devotes a full chapter to evaluating the strengths and weaknesses of each country's bond market. For each country, Emery describes the history of the bond market and identifies its key participants, the different types of bonds, and the current terms for bond issues. He also discusses the size of the bond market, the bond issuing process, trading procedures, and the structure of the market, the clearing and settlement system, and fees and taxes. Finally, he lists the regulators of the market, current regulations, and bond rating agencies, assesses the market's past performance, and offers suggestions for improvement. Each country chapter is organized into a standard format, making it easy for the reader to locate and compare specific information. Emery concludes the book with cross-country comparisons of the eight countries' bond markets. It will be an invaluable reference for economists, policymakers, and all those interested in emerging capital markets.
