Tractatus Logicophilosophicus Rediscovered S Complete And Unabridged:

A Theory of Immediate Awareness M. Estep, 2013-06-29 This book is multi and interdisciplinary in both scope and content. It draws upon philosophy, the neurosciences, psychology, computer science, and engineering in efforts to resolve fundamental issues about the nature of immediate awareness. Approximately the first half of the book is addressed to historical approaches to the question whether or not there is such a thing as immediate awareness and if so what it might be. This involves reviewing arguments that one way or another have been offered as answers to the question or ways of avoiding it. It also includes detailed discussions of some complex questions about the part immediate awareness plays in our overall natural intelligence. The second half of the book addresses intricate and complex issues involved in the computability of immediate awareness as it is found in simple ordinary things human beings know how to do as well as in some highly extraordinary things some know how to do. Over the past 2 500 years human culture has discovered, created, and built very powerful tools for recognizing, classifying, and utilizing patterns found in the natural world. The most powerful of those tools is mathematics, the language of nature. The natural phenomenon of human knowing of natural intelligence generally is a very richly textured set of patterns that are highly complex, dynamic, self-organizing, and adaptive.

Self-Organizing Natural Intelligence Myrna Estep, 2006-12-26 Self-Organizing Natural Intelligence brings new scientific methods to intelligence research that is currently under the influence of largely classical 19th century single causal theory and method. This outdated classical approach has resulted in the single capacity g theory, a central processor, top-down, genetically determined, linguistic view of intelligence that is directly contradicted by empirical facts of human and animal studies of intelligence. This book proposes, utilizes, and demonstrates the research superiority of a highly developed multidisciplinary theory models approach to intelligence. With conceptual tools, concepts, and mathematical methods more suited to continuous dynamic phenomena of living things, the entire scope of natural intelligence based upon empirical studies of actual human and animal experience is addressed. Results show that human and animal intelligence is largely self-organizing and emergent across a spectrum of major categories of kinds of natural intelligence, not limited to a single top-down capacity as current proponents of the single capacity g theory and IQ approach support. Contrary to the single capacity verbal theory of intelligence, this work argues and shows evidence for three major categories of natural intelligence. Overwhelming empirical evidence is given to show that our understanding of cognition itself must be broadened to include nonverbal immediate awareness as a category of natural intelligence that is embedded within sensory and somatosensory motor processes that make possible yet another category of intelligence, knowing how. While most current theories of intelligence assume that the mind is entirely computational and also assume that sensation is cognitively neutral, having no intentionality, here empirical evidence is presented from numerous clinical studies showing that certain primitive sensory processes are not cognitively neutral nor do they require a representational language interface in order to be accessible to cognitive intelligence processes. This volume describes a rigorous treatment and exhaustive classification of natural intelligence while also demonstrating a more adequate scientific and mathematical approach than current statistical and psychometric approaches shoring up the out dated and misused IQ hypothetical construct
