Fighting Traffic Peter D. Norton, 2011-01-21 The fight for the future of the city street between pedestrians street railways and promoters of the automobile between 1915 and 1930 Before the advent of the automobile users of city streets were diverse and included children at play and pedestrians at large By 1930 most streets were primarily a motor thoroughfares where children did not belong and where pedestrians were condemned as jaywalkers In Fighting Traffic Peter Norton argues that to accommodate automobiles the American city required not only a physical change but also a social one before the city could be reconstructed for the sake of motorists its streets had to be socially reconstructed as places where motorists belonged It was not an evolution he writes but a bloody and sometimes violent revolution Norton describes how street users struggled to define and redefine what streets were for He examines developments in the crucial transitional years from the 1910s to the 1930s uncovering a broad anti automobile campaign that reviled motorists as road hogs or speed demons and cars as juggernauts or death cars He considers the perspectives of all users pedestrians police who had to become traffic cops street railways downtown businesses traffic engineers who often saw cars as the problem not the solution and automobile promoters He finds that pedestrians and parents campaigned in moral terms fighting for justice Cities and downtown businesses tried to regulate traffic in the name of efficiency Automotive interest groups meanwhile legitimized their claim to the streets by invoking freedom a rhetorical stance of particular power in the United States Fighting Traffic offers a new look at both the origins of the automotive city in America and how social groups shape technological change

Report Public Service Commission of Maryland, 1949 The Great American Transit Disaster Nicholas Dagen Bloom, 2023-05-03 One of the most enduring American urban myths concerns the death of the Red Car Trolley an extensive and equitable system in Los Angeles County that some say was weakened and then eradicated by US car manufacturers Yet as Nicholas Dagen Bloom shows an array of larger yet less tangible forces together interacted to practically murder public transportation of all kinds in cities nationwide Most centrally public transit collapsed because essentially we wanted it to no conspiracy necessary Detailing the histories of transportation in Atlanta Baltimore Boston Chicago Detroit and San Francisco Bloom seeks to set all of our transit myths to rest for the sake not only of accuracy but in order to enrich our conversations about public transportation funding today Hearings United States.
