Higher Education Enakshi Sengupta,Patrick Blessinger,2022-08-02 ICT and Innovation in Teaching Learning Methods in Higher Education is a collection of interventions and collaborative practices from across the world that showcase the multifaceted ways of how various institutions have been engaged in supporting teaching and learning with the use of technology Action Learning Peter Cauwelier,George Boak,2025-05-27 People undertake action learning work in small groups to tackle organisational and social problems and to learn from their experience of working together to bring about change Having a dedicated facilitator or a coach for a group can make the process more effective and rewarding This book provides examples and analyses of effective behaviours of action learning facilitators and coaches Action learning is an approach to individual team and organisational learning In an action learning group people work collaboratively to make sense of the problems that they are addressing to devise plans to bring about improvements and to reflect on their progress and on what they have learned Having someone act as a facilitator or a coach for an action learning group is often necessary to ensure that the group finds a helpful balance between solving the immediate problems that face them and achieving genuine learning not just about the problem but also about themselves as individuals and about the group as a dynamic unit In this book experienced practitioners of action learning provide a rich range of examples of the use of facilitators and coaches in action learning groups Contributors from the UK the USA Thailand Taiwan the Caribbean and the Netherlands offer case studies reflections advice and the fruits of their research into this important topic This book was originally published as a special issue of Action Learning Research and Practice Creative Problem Solver's Guidebook Donald J. Treffinger,2000 Educational title for gifted and advanced learners Advancing the forest and water nexus Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2019-10-18 Forests are intrinsically linked to water forested watersheds provide 75 percent of our accessible freshwater resources Millennium Ecosystem Assessment 2005 and both forest and water resources are relevant to the achievement of all 17 Sustainable Development Goals Despite the important interlinkages the forest water nexus is often unaccounted for in policy and planning For example three quarters of forests are not managed for soil and water conservation which poses a fundamental challenge to achieving sustainable and resilient communities and ecosystems It is paramount to employ an integrated approach to forest and water resources in management and policy that takes into account the complexity and contextual nature of forest water relationships To achieve this we must improve our understanding of forest water relationships within local contexts and at different scales as well as our ability to design implement and learn from landscape approaches that both rely on these forest water relationships and impact them In this context FAO's Forest and Water Programme has developed a module based capacity development facilitation guide for project and community stakeholders involved in forest water and natural resource management to ensure we apply our knowledge to better manage forests and trees for their multiple benefits including water quantity quality and the associated socio economic benefits that people within and outside forests so heavily depend on ProPack II Valerie Stetson, Susan Hahn, David Leege, Debbie Reynolds, Guy Sharrock, 2007-04-09

Team Performance in Health Care Gloria D. Heinemann, Antonette M. Zeiss, 2012-12-06 The idea of teamwork in health care emerged at several times during the 20th century as the result of shifts in the nature and demands of health care and societal needs Examples include medical and surgical teams serving the military in World War II primary care teams staffing Community Health Centers created by President Johnson's War On Poverty and geriatric care teams established to serve the rapidly growing number of aging citizens Collaborative teamwork surfaced as a rational solution to health care needs but political and economic consensus to support widespread implementation was lacking The increasing complexity of providing health care seemed best served by the skills and efforts of interdisciplinary teams but such care was viewed as expensive so evaluation of its effectiveness became essential There were major problems in conducting such evaluation however First no clear theory guided the concept and practice of teamwork Early attempts to employ theoretical constructs explaining the behavioral and organizational phenomena of teamwork borrowed from theories of group dynamics communication organizational development and general systems Further few reliable validated instruments existed to evaluate team process function or effectiveness The best early efforts at research and evaluation came from academic centers funded by the Office of Interdisciplinary Programs of the Bureau of Health Professions 1975-78 and from the Veterans Affairs Interprofessional Team Training Development Program

The Art and Science of Training Elaine Biech, 2016-12-01 There are more similarities than differences between how artists and scientists work Both ask countless questions Both search in earnest for answers Both are dedicated to reaching the best results Not so different from today's trainers are they Elaine Biech one of the most highly regarded names in talent development has set out to identify the perfect blend of content mastery and audience insight The result is this highly informative book The Art and Science of Training presents the science for learning and development but it also emphasizes that training success lies in knowing what to do when things don't go as planned Discover how top facilitators always put learners first even when faced with exceptions to the rule the unwilling learner the uninformed supervisor the inappropriate delivery medium or the unmanageable performance challenge And learn why you must understand people not only content to ensure consistently exceptional learning experiences Science is both a body of knowledge and a process Art is the expression of creativity and imagination Where they intersect is the best way to help others learn and grow
