

SAMPLE REPORT

Case Description: Mr. J – Interpretive Report

Mr. J is a 44-year-old divorced man assessed at intake for services at a community mental health center following a brief stay at a crisis stabilization unit. Mr. J was taken to the stabilization unit by law enforcement personnel after a serious suicide attempt involving vehicular carbon monoxide poisoning. He had been involved in very contentious divorce- and child custody-related proceedings for two years prior to this attempt. In addition to having a conflictual relationship with his ex-wife, Mr. J was estranged from his two teenage children, and he had minimal sources of social support. His only prior contact with a mental health professional involved a child custody evaluation conducted two years prior to the current assessment. Mr. J's ex-wife was granted full custody minus planned bi-weekly visitations with Mr. J.

The worker who conducted Mr. J's intake interview described him as depressed, despondent, tearful, and withdrawn. He was characterized as speaking in a monotone and giving laconic responses to questions he was asked. He was fully oriented and showed no signs of thought disturbance. No significant history of acting out behavior was elicited. Mr. J acknowledged continuing suicidal ideation but denied current intent. He was diagnosed with a Major Depressive Disorder, Severe with Melancholic Features and accepted for treatment in an intensive outpatient program.

Steinmetz, Marvin B. Sussman, 2013-11-11 The lucid straightforward Preface of this Handbook by the two editors and the comprehensive perspectives offered in the Introduction by one of them leave little for a Foreword to add It is therefore limited to two relevant but not intrinsically related points: a review of research on marriage and the family in the interval since the first Handbook Christensen 1964 appeared namely the impact on this research of the politicization of the New Right and of the Feminist Enlightenment beginning in the mid sixties about the time of the first Handbook In the late 1930s Willard Waller noted Fifty years or more ago about 1890 most people had the greatest respect for the institution called the family and wished to learn nothing whatever about it Everything that concerned the life of men and women and their children was shrouded from the light Today much of that has been changed Gone is the concealment of the way in which life begins gone the irrational sanctity of the home The aura of sentiment which once protected the family from discussion clings to it no more We want to learn as much about it as we can and to understand it as thoroughly as possible for there is a rising recognition in America that vast numbers of its families are sick from internal frustrations and from external buffeting We are engaged in the process of reconstructing our family institutions through criticism and discussion 1938 pp 3-4 Child Welfare Revisited Joyce Everett, Sandra Stukes Chipungu, Bogart R. Leashore, 2004 Why are there proportionally more African American children in foster care than white children Why are white children often readily adoptable while African American children are difficult to place Are these imbalances an indication of institutional racism or merely a coincidence In this revised and expanded edition of the classic volume Child Welfare twenty-one educators call attention to racial disparities in the child welfare system by demonstrating how practices that are successful for white children are often not similarly successful for African American children Moreover contributors insist that policymakers and care providers look at African American family life and child development from a culturally based Africentric perspective Such a perspective the book argues can serve as a catalyst for creativity and innovation in the formulation of policies and practices aimed at improving the welfare of African American children Child Welfare Revisited offers new chapters on the role of institutional racism and economics on child welfare the effects of substance abuse homelessness HIV AIDS and domestic violence and the internal strengths and challenges that are typical of African American families Bringing together timely new developments and information this book will continue to be essential reading for all child welfare policymakers and practitioners Deadbeat Dads Marcia M. Boumil,Joel Friedman,1996-03-11 Recently many political voices have indicated a strong desire to track down absent fathers who have absconded without fulfilling child support obligations to their biological or adopted children This renewed interest in deadbeat dads has resulted from a recognition that the social welfare programs which pick up the tab for abandoned children are contributing significantly to an ever increasing federal budget deficit Meanwhile in a large number of cases there simply isn't enough money for an absent parent to maintain his own separate support and fulfill the support obligations that the law requires This book explores the history reforms and consequences of child support in America The authors have included case studies as well as discussions on the psychological consequences of separating families effects of divorce laws on the award of child support contested paternity and child custody alternatives They conclude with a discussion on economic responsibility and the deadbeat epidemic The book is intended to empower the larger number of parents who are caught in the midst of overworked agencies discouraging tales and the lack of information that keeps them paralyzed from acting on their own behalf Resources in Education ,2000 Foster Care, Child Welfare, and Adoption Reforms United States.
