British Sociology's Lost Biological Roots Chris

Renwick, 2012-01-25 A new and innovative account of British sociology's intellectual origins that uses previously unknown archival resources to show how the field's forgotten roots in a late nineteenth and early twentieth century debate about biology can help us understand both its subsequent development and future potential

Language in Cape Town's

District Six Kay McCormick, 2002 The book is a sociolinguistic case study of District Six an inner city neighbourhood in Cape Town characterized by language mixing and switching of English and Afrikaans Its early inhabitants included indigenous people freed slaves of African and Asian origin and immigrants from Europe and elsewhere The ravages of apartheid affected the residents attitudes towards their languages in various ways which are described The book examines the norms and practices regarding language choice for various functions and domains in the only surviving sector of District Six It also contains detailed analyses of extended bilingual conversations showing a range of social linguistic and discourse features Of particular interest is the paradoxical polarization and blending of the two languages They are strongly polarized symbolically and functionally yet they are also habitually blended in vernacular speech through lexical borrowing and intrasentential language switching This paradox has interesting implications for the construction of individual community and language identity

Nineteenth-Century Cape Breton Stephen J. Hornsby, 1992-03-24 During the North American colonial period the expansion of European capital and labour into North America created two broad patterns of regional development agricultural settlement and the exploitation of raw materials or staples Hornsby examines the development of nineteenth century Cape Breton in light of these patterns focusing on the impact of Scottish immigration on the island's settlement and agricultural development and on the role of mercantile and industrial capital in developing Cape Breton's two great staple industries cod fishing and coal mining Hornsby also outlines the reasons for the massive exodus from Cape Breton during the late nineteenth century The intersection of these two patterns of development gave rise to a distinctive regional geography Over the course of a hundred years a complex mosaic of different settlements economies and cultures emerged on the island While the details and circumstances of these developments were unique to the island elements of the Cape Breton experience were found in other areas of Maritime Canada Viewed more generally Hornsby suggests that the historical geography of this small peripheral island offers a simple somewhat stark encapsulation of some of the salient developments in the rest of settled Canada during the nineteenth century

African-American Holiness Pentecostal Movement Sherry S. DuPree, 2013-09-13 First Published in 1996 Those of us who aspire to know about the black church in the African American experience are never satisfied We know so much more about the Christian and church life of black

Americans than we did even a dozen years ago but all the recent discoveries whet our insatiable appetites to know it all That goal will never be attained of course but there do remain many conquerable worlds Sherry Sherrod DuPree set her mind to conquering one of those worlds She has persisted with the results detailed here A huge number of items are available to inform us about Holiness Pentecostal and Charismatic congregations and organizations in the African American Christian community Takahashi: Development and Subsistence in Globalis ,2023-06-27 In Africa people striving to live and survive under the complex relationship between development and subsistence have been directly or indirectly feeling influences of globalisation As Africa s involvement in globalisation deepens social phenomena are apparently synchronizing or becoming more similar to those in the rest of the world but they are not homogenised with them especially those of developed countries now or in the past The dichotomic view distinguishing development and subsistence has already become outdated Day after day African people are trying to reconcile or bridge the two as capable actors People in Africa faced with challenges common throughout the world live in their own ways Africa can contribute to the world by sharing knowledge acquired through the struggles of development and subsistence and by bridging the two Studies in the History of Cape Town ,1979

Chambers's Encyclopaedia David Patrick,William Geddie,1927 Memory in Culture A. Erll,2016-04-30 This book questions the sociocultural dimensions of remembering It offers an overview of the history and theory of memory studies through the lens of sociology political science anthropology psychology literature art and media studies documenting current international and interdisciplinary memory research in an unprecedented way Constitution Papers ,1906 COSATU'S Contested Legacy Sakhela Buhlungu,Malehoko Tshoaedi,2013-04-15 COSATU s Contested Legacy provides a fresh and up to date analysis of trade unionism in contemporary South Africa by focusing on the Congress of South African Trade Unions the largest and most powerful federation Drawing on quantitative data from four time series surveys of union members over a period of sixteen years the authors present rigorous and authoritative analyses that shed light on the dilemmas and opportunities facing trade unionism today The volume shows how various sections of the trade union movement grapple with these dilemmas and contest with one another to chart a future trajectory for trade unionism An Affluent Society? Lawrence Black,Hugh Pemberton,2017-07-28 During an election speech in 1957 the Prime Minister Harold Macmillan famously remarked that most of our people have never had it so good Although taken out of context this phrase soon came to epitomize the sense of increased affluence and social progress that was prevalent in Britain during the 1950s and 1960s Yet despite the recognition that Britain had moved away from an era of rationing and scarcity to a new age of choice and plenty there was simultaneously a parallel feeling that the nation was in decline and being economically outstripped by its international competitors Whilst the study of Britain s postwar history is a well trodden path and the paradox of absolute growth versus relative decline much debated it is here approached in a fresh and rewarding way Rather than highlighting economic and industrial decline this volume emphasizes the tremendous impact of rising affluence and consumerism on

British society It explores various expressions of affluence new consumer goods shifting social and cultural values changes in popular expectations of policy shifting popular political behaviour changing attitudes of politicians towards the electorate and the representation of affluence in popular culture and advertising By focusing on the widespread cultural consequences of increasing levels of consumerism emphasizing growth over decline and recognizing the rising standards of living enjoyed by most Britons a new and intriguing window is opened on the complexities of this golden age Contrasting growing consumer expectations and demands against the anxieties of politicians and economists this book offers all students of the period a new perspective from which to view post imperial Britain and to question many conventional historical assumptions
