Social Science Grade9 Geography 2014 Final Exa:

The Global Testing Culture William C. Smith, 2016-01-04 The past thirty years have seen a rapid expansion of testing exposing students worldwide to tests that are now more than ever standardized and linked to high stakes outcomes The use of testing as a policy tool has been legitimized within international educational development to measure education quality in the vast majority of countries worldwide The embedded nature and normative power of high stakes standardized testing across national contexts can be understood as a global testing culture The global testing culture permeates all aspects of education from financing to parental involvement to teacher and student beliefs and practices The reinforcing nature of the global testing culture leads to an environment where testing becomes synonymous with accountability which becomes synonymous with education quality Underlying the global testing culture is a set of values identified from the increasing literature on world culture These include education as a human right academic intelligence faith in science decentralization and neoliberalism Each of these values highlights different aspects of the dialogue in support of high stakes standardized testing The wide approval of these values and their ability to legitimate various aspects of high stakes testing reinforces the taken for granted notion that such tests are effective and appropriate education practices However a large body of literature emphasizes the negative unintended consequences teaching to the test reshaping the testing pool the inequitable distribution of school resources and teachers attention and reconstructing the role of the student teacher and parent commonly found when standardized census based tests are combined with high stakes outcomes for educators or students This book problematizes this culture by providing critical perspectives that challenge the assumptions of the culture and describe how the culture manifests in national contexts The volume makes it clear that testing per se is not the problem Instead it is how tests are administered used or misused and linked to accountability that provide the global testing culture with its powerful ability to shape schools and society and lead to its unintended undesirable consequences Rivista J-Reading n. 1-2014

L. Brown, 2024-11-15 As we enter the third decade of the 21st century the field of education plays a more crucial role in understanding the contemporary world than ever before. Analyzing the role of education in leading and driving change through policy practice and constant innovation for a more inclusive education whether it being educating students or teachers is crucial in the development of new and improved education systems worldwide. To this end Frontiers in Education is organizing a series of Research Topics to highlight the latest advancements in the field. This editorial initiative led by Dr Gavin Brown, Specialty Chief Editor of the Assessment, Testing and Applied Measurement section, is focused on new insights, novel developments, current challenges, recent advances, and future perspectives in the field of assessment in education.

Accountability in education: meeting our commitments UNESCO, 2017-10-30. The second edition of the Global Education Monitoring Report (GEM Report) presents the latest evidence on global progress towards the education targets of the UN Sustainable Development Goals. With hundreds of millions of people still not going to school and many not achieving minimum skills at school, it is clear education systems are off track to achieve global goals. The marginalized currently bear the most consequences but also stand to benefit the most if policy makers pay sufficient attention to their needs. Faced with these challenges along with tight budgets and increased emphasis on results-oriented value for money, countries are searching for solutions. Increased accountability often tops the list. The 2017 8 GEM Report shows the entire array of approaches to accountability in education. It ranges from countries unused to the concept where violations of the right to education go unchallenged to countries where accountability has become an end in itself instead of a means to inclusive, equitable and high quality education and lifelong learning for all. The report emphasizes that education is a shared responsibility. While governments have primary responsibility, all actors—schools, teachers, parents, students, international organizations, private sector providers, civil society and the media—have a role in improving education systems. The report emphasized the importance of transparency and availability of information but urges caution in how data are used. It makes the case for avoiding accountability systems with a disproportionate focus on narrowly defined results and punitive sanctions. In an era of multiple accountability tools, the report provides clear evidence on those that are working and those that are not. Back cover.

UNESCO, UNICEF, 2014-11-10. Starting Life as a Midwife Michelle Gray, Ellen Kitson-Reynolds, Allison

Cummins, 2019-04-10. This volume explores the unique challenges midwifery graduates face as they move into practice. It identifies the similarities and differences in midwifery education, regulation and clinical practice faced by graduate midwives in all continents, examining the various support systems available for graduate midwives in many countries and identifying the common strategies, formal and informal, and approaches that have proved to be effective in supporting midwifery graduates. The book volume brings together the experiences of new midwives starting out in registered practice to share the challenges and triumphs during their transition to confident practitioners. It identifies, explains and details both established and innovative new mechanisms in place to support new midwives in each country and examines the effects the experiences of transitioning to practice may have on future professional practice resilience and sustainability Lack of support during the new graduate transition to practice has been associated with early attrition from the midwifery profession Stress disillusion and horizontal violence have been identified as factors that influence midwifery attrition rates Exploration of the various support mechanisms currently available in different countries may stimulate the sharing of best practices in providing new midwives with transition to practice programmes and generate further research Each chapter is harmonized to facilitate the comparison between countries and the maternity services context is explained using each country's specific legislation regulation and registration of midwives The preparation of midwifery students for qualified practice is outlined to explain how midwifery students are trained and socialized into the profession mentored in their placements and then transitioned to registered midwife status This book appeals to midwives managers educators and newly graduated interested in international midwifery practice

Despite ongoing debates about its origins the Anthropocene a new epoch characterized by significant human impact on the Earth's geology and ecosystems is widely acknowledged Our environment is increasingly a product of interacting biophysical and social forces shaped by climate change colonial legacies gender norms hydrological processes and more Understanding these intricate interactions requires a mixed methods approach that combines qualitative and quantitative biophysical and social research However mixed methods environmental research remains rare hindered by academic boundaries limited training and the challenges of interdisciplinary collaboration Time funding and the integration of diverse data further complicate this research whilst the dynamics and ethics of interdisciplinary teams add another layer of complexity Despite these challenges mixed methods research offers a more robust and ultimately transformative understanding of environmental questions This Field Guide aims to inspire and equip researchers to undertake such studies Organized like a recipe book it assists researchers in the preparation of their field work as well as offering entry points to key methods and providing examples of successful mixed methods projects This book will be of interest to scholars wishing to tackle environmental research in a more holistic manner spanning sister disciplines such as anthropology statistics political science public health archaeology geography history ecology and Earth science

Standard Setting in Education Sigrid Blömeke, Jan-Eric Gustafsson, 2017-02-27 This book summarizes the international evidence on methodological issues in standard setting in education By critically discussing the standard setting practices implemented in the Nordic countries and by presenting new methodological approaches it offers fresh perspectives on the current research Standard setting targets crucial societal objectives by defining educational benchmarks at different achievement levels and provides feedback to policy makers schools and teachers about the strengths and weaknesses of a school system Given that the consequences of standard setting can be dramatic the quality of standard setting is a prime concern If it fails repercussions can be expected in terms of arbitrary evaluations of educational policy wrong turns in school or teacher development or misplacement of individual students Standard setting therefore needs to be accurate reliable valid useful and defensible However specific evidence on the benefits and limits of different approaches to standard setting is rare and scattered and there is a particular lack with respect to standard setting in the Nordic countries where the number of national tests is increasing and there are concerns about the time and effort spent on testing at schools without feedback being provided Addressing this gap the book offers a discussion on standard setting by respected experts as well as profound and innovative insights into fundamental aspects of standard setting including conclusions for future methodological and policy related research
