

UNIT 2 SOCIOLOGY PAPER 2

2014

Module 1

1. Within recent times, various countries have implemented population policies in an effort to address population and development issues.

For a named Caribbean society, evaluate its population policy in relation to TWO of the following:

- (i) Birth control
- (ii) Food security
- (iii) Housing

Define population policies- the measures and programmes taken by a country to achieve the balance necessary for sustainable population growth. These policies can be restrictionist or expansive. Population policy is determined based on the type of population growth a country experiences. For the most part Caribbean countries cannot grow their own food, we still import rice and wheat. Things that we should be able to grow in our country we still import in Trinidad. Trinidad has fertile land which housing is put up on, people are moving away from farming. There is not adequate housing in Trinidad and Tobago and housing is incredibly expensive as well. Overpopulation in Haiti. Ageing population in Barbados and Trinidad.

Birth control- look at Haiti and also speak about Thomas Malthus. If a lot of young people migrate the birth rate would drop. Population trends. You evaluate a policy by showing how the trends that you see would lead to the creation of the policy. A country's greatest resource is its human resource. If you have rapid population growth you would need policies to slow population growth to ensure proper allocation of resources and sustainable development. Policies- Family Planning to spread information about the use of contraceptives, provide contraceptives and to help people to space out when they have their children. China's 1 child policy. Educating children about the importance of not having many children, educating the persons about proper health care during pregnancy to lower infant mortality rate and teaching young girls about the importance of contraceptives. '2 is better than 2 many' -Jamaica. Monetary incentives for people to have children in countries with an ageing population.

Food security- Thomas Malthus on food supply and resources. Population grows geometrically and the resources grow arithmetically meaning that the population would outstrip the food supply. Food security is important because feeding your population is important in order to ensure their survival otherwise there would be unrest. Proper nutrition ensures the productivity of your population. People are moving away from agriculture and this leads to the importation of food increasing the prices of food in a country.

Policies- Food aid in Haiti. Incentives to farmers. People with farmers badges get VAT off of vehicles and agricultural products like seeds and fertilisers. The government invests in ECLAF (Eastern Caribbean Institute of Agriculture and Forestry) who does agricultural research to create seeds that are specific to our climate. Utilise agricultural land to produce raw resources the dominant traits of that system as he saw it Parsons dedicated many pages to each aspect While he did not know the full horror of the Nazi war against the Jews he was able to develop a theoretical framework that continues to be a foundation stone for the analysis of national socialism Gerhardt s editorial labors in the Parsons archive at Harvard have yielded nothing less than a new book by the foremost American sociological theorist of his time This collection of both published and unpublished writings conveys Parsons cohesive intent To these otherwise fugitive and neglected essays Gerhardt contributes an introductory essay of her own in part biography in part intellectual and social history She discovered Parsons work on National Socialism while studying his sociology of the professions and his use of medical practice to demonstrate how social science could become an antidote for fascism and authoritarianism Uta Gerhardt is director of the Medical Sociology Unit at Justus Liebig University Giessen She has taught sociology at the Free University of Berlin the University of Konstanz the University of California at Berkeley the San Francisco Medical School the University of London and the University of Wisconsin at Madison The present volume comes out of her sabbatical year as Research Affiliate of the Minda de Gunzburg Center for European Studies of Harvard University

Women, Stress, and Heart Disease Kristina Orth-Gomer, Margaret A. Chesney, Nanette K. Wenger, 1998-03-01 The issue of women's health has long been neglected This applies to many medical areas but it has become most evident in the field of cardiology For a long time cardiology has been a medical specialty which seemed to be created for men by men particularly in research but also in intensive clinical care units where male patients have been most visible and dominating Furthermore the clinical cardiologists their doctors have been predominantly male It is easy to understand that most women think they will die from cancer rather than from heart disease but this is not true Heart disease is the leading cause of death for women as it is for men Female patients are frequently encountered in the cardiology department but they are older and seem to get less visibility and attention than the male patients Research on risk factors for heart disease has also been almost entirely focused on men This is true for psychosocial behavioral aspects of cardiovascular risk Aiming to fill this gap this volume contains contributions from outstanding international and national researchers from different fields such as sociology psychology epidemiology cardiology clinical medicine and physiology These professionals gathered together for an interdisciplinary seminar on women stress and heart disease held at the Swedish Society of Medicine Based on the seminar this book provides a solid foundation for empirically based scientific conclusions on this important subject Resources in Education, 1995 Health Inequalities Andreas Mielck, Maria do Rosário Giraldez, 1994 Psychopathology and Social Prejudice Derek Hook, Gillian Eagle, 2002 This volume offers an innovative set of critical examinations of the field of psychopathology It investigates the social formation of psychopathology across different cultural discursive and political contexts and draws upon theory from two traditional domains of psychology social and abnormal psychology The diverse topics covered include xenophobia anorexia nervosa witch hunting post traumatic stress homosexuality race categorization and crosscultural issues The various topics work in concert to unseat the notion of psychopathology as comprising decontextualized individualized essentialist categories of organic illness
